FURTHER RIGHT OVER ISLANDS UNDER DOUBT

League Investigates Reports of Suspicious Action of Japanese

MINISTER ANSWERS DIRECT QUESTIONS

GENEVA, Nov. 5 (AP).—The entire question of Japan's right to hold islands under mandate in the Pacific Ocean, now that she has resigned from the League of Nations, was thrown into discussion today as the League Mandate Commission heard a report that United States warships had been refused the right to visit former German islands now under Japanese mandate.

According to League officials, reports exist that Japan, in violation of mandate regulations, is secretly constructing naval bases on these islands. This concrete question, however, did not arise at today's meeting.

What did happen was that a member of the commission told Nobumichi Ito, the Japanese minister of Poland, that he had read in a Stockholm newspaper that a United States battleship, transporting an American scientific group which intended to study an eclipse of the sun, had been denied admission to islands under Japanese mandate.

Ito answered he had no knowledge of the report and added that the Japanese Government itself had

May Secede From Australia

Western Australian representatives, designated after residents of their state voted two to one for secession in a plebiscite, are in London, seeking Parliament's approval of Western Australia's separation politically from Australian Commonwealth. Its geographic separation from the other states by 1,000 miles of wastelands, as shown in the map, is the reason. Pictured are a strip of the desert and the Australian capital at Canberra, remote from Western Australia.

EXPLAINS CASE FOR SECESSION

Western Australia Delegation Meets Private Members' Committee

LONDON, Nov. 5 (CP).—Western Australia's case for secession from the rest of Australia was explained today, to a meeting of Conservatives, who are on the private members' committee of the House of Commons, by Sir Hal Colebatch, agent-general for that state, in London.

FRIENDLIER FEELINGS

The state seeks to become independent, but Sir Hal stressed it had no intention of severing its connections with the rest of the Empire. After secession the people of Western Australia would still fully be members, with the rest of Australia, in the Empire, and would include in much friendlier feelings towards the rest of the island continent than was possible today.

LESS POPULAR STATES

Western Australia's experience had proved that under a federal system covering a large area it was impossible to preserve state sovereignty and particularly, it was impossible to protect the financial and economic freedom of the "less popular" states. He said South Australia and Tasmania were in like case.

JAPAN TAKES NO PART IN DISPUTE

TOKIO, Nov. 5 (AP).—Foreign Minister Koki Hirota informed the British and United States ambassadors tonight that Japan did not consider Manchukuo's contemplated alteration to monopoly of the open door principle, and she was washing her hands of the entire matter.

Notes sent to the two Embassies advised protesting all interests to enter direct negotiations with the Manchukuo Government, stating the Japanese Government was in no wise concerned, since the whole matter was a domestic affair of Manchukuo.

The British and United States Governments have made representations to Tokio on the subject.

FRANCE FACING WEIGHTY CRISIS

Doumergue Determined on Reform With Open Disapproval of Socialists

PARIS, Nov. 5 (CP-Havas).—With Premier Gaston Doumergue apparently determined to bring about constitutional reform despite opposition which threatens to wreck his cabinet, France, today, entered what is universally held to be the most important week of its political history since the Great War.

The situation, which finds Doumergue faced by open disapproval of the Radical Socialist party, mainstay of his Government, and bitter opposition from the Left Wing groups, today, was complicated further by insistent reports that Finance Minister Germain Martin was about to resign.

VETERANS GIVE SUPPORT

Nevertheless, the fighting little Premier, who enjoys wide support of the French people as a whole, today, reiterated his demands for reform in a dramatic meeting with war veteran organizations, representing 3,500,000 voters. Their support was accorded him unanimously.

The next two or three days are expected to bring the showdown—whether Doumergue will have his way or will resign before Parliament's resistance.

Should he take the latter course, and it was hoped for the sake of public order he would not, the gravest disturbances are expected, it was said here, tonight. Compromise was considered the only way out, which apparently means capitulation of Parliament on the basic reform issues.

PRISON BREAK IS ENDED FATALITY

ANGOLA, La., Nov. 5 (AP).—One convict was killed and four others were wounded, two seriously, when a group of twenty convicts at the state prison here, today, dropped their work implements in a potato field and attempted a mad rush for freedom within rifle range of alert prison guards. None of the rebellious convicts escaped.

OCEAN FLYERS RESTING AT LOS ANGELES

Kingsford-Smith's Plane Is Attached for Debt After Completing Flight

BELIEVES PACIFIC SERVICE FEASIBLE

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 5 (AP).—Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, who spanned the Pacific Ocean from Australia only to have his airplane attached upon his arrival here for an asserted unpaid debt of 1928, today predicted trans-Pacific commercial flights with land planes.

Sir Charles and his navigator, Captain P. G. Taylor, landed at Oakland at 7:44 a.m., Sunday, completing the 2,408-mile flight from Honolulu in 14 hours and 59 minutes, and apologized to a small group of spectators for his "early arrival." The trip was without incident, Sir Charles stated, except for a few minutes when they were forced to fly "blind" through a rain storm.

PIONEER FLIGHT

The famous Australian aviator, the first person to pilot a plane from the United States to Australia, thus became the first person to fly the route from Australia, and the first person to fly from the Hawaiian Islands to the United States.

After resting for a few hours at Oakland, Sir Charles and Captain Taylor continued on to this city, another 340 miles.

"Of course, trans-Pacific commercial flight is feasible," said Sir Charles, who was welcomed here as a conquering hero.

"It will be done by land planes, not sea planes or flying boats, I believe—or at least it ought to be that way."

WILL BECOME SIMPLE

"They won't need floating air-dromes or a line of steamships dotting the course. In a short time, when pay load has been increased without sacrificing fuel load, the California-Honolulu flight will be as simple and devoid of hazards as my own hop was, and plenty of islands are strewn along the route between Suva and Hawaii, the longest flight."

The debt that led to the attachment of the Lady Southern Cross, it was stated in a suit filed here shortly after Sir Charles' triumphant arrival, harked back to his previous westward flight over the Pacific from Oakland to Australia.

The suit was filed by E. Beverley.

WANT THEIR OWN BUREAU

United States Hotelkeepers Recognize Value of Canadian Organization

OTTAWA, Nov. 5 (CP).—So successful has been the Canadian Travel Bureau under Federal auspices, the United States Hotel Men's Association has petitioned its Government for a similar organization in Washington. The Canadian Association of Tourist and Publicity Bureaus heard this today from D. Leo Dolan, director of the travel bureau, and Color G. F. C. Pousette, Winnipeg, newly-elected president of the National Tourist Organization.

This information was given the association in reply to Senator Creelman MacArthur, Prince Edward Island, who asked the conference of tourist executives for an opinion as to the reaction in the United States and other foreign countries of the increased activity in Canadian travel and tourist business as a result of the travel bureau being formed under Federal direction on the recommendation of the Senate's tourist committee, last July.

A SMALL PERCENTAGE

United States tourists spent over $3,000,000,000 during the 1934 Summer and Fall season, Colonel Pousette said. Of this, Canada received the largest benefit, which amounted to 5 per cent, or $150,000,000.

WARSHIPS CRASH IN MOCK BATTLE

No One Seriously Injured When U.S. Destroyers Collide Off Mexican Coast

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 5 (AP).—Two destroyers of the United States fleet, the Ellis and the McFarland, collided, tonight, 200 miles off Magdalena Bay, Mexico, during mock battle maneuvers, radio dispatches received here stated.

As they sped forward to deliver the attack, most of their lights out, the Ellis, commanded by Lieutenant Commander F. K. O'Brien, rammed the other destroyer on the starboard side.

"No serious injury to the personnel," read a report radioed from the commander of the McFarland to the fleet flagship.

The report added, however, that the water in the fireroom of the McFarland had reached the gratings and was gaining. Two tenders, the Dobbin and Whitney, were standing by to take the vessel in tow, if necessary.

ABNORMAL RAIN IN WEST WASHINGTON

PORT ALBERNI, Nov. 5. —The worst storm experienced here in years swept up the Alberni canal early this morning, accompanied by torrential rain, causing damage which tonight had not yet been assessed.

The greatest excitement was caused when the motorship Nichiyo Maru, which had been anchored in the stream for several days, loading lumber, dragged her anchors and drifted up the harbor.

Residents were awakened at two in the morning by the continuous blast of the ship's whistle. Those on the waterfront had to stand helpless while the ship, at the mercy of the storm, swept towards the rocks.

That she would be driven to destruction appeared imminent, when a shift in the direction of the wind swept the vessel onto the mud at the mouth of the Somass River, about half-a-mile from where she had been anchored.

PULLED OFF MUD

Fortunately it was low tide when the ship struck. By half-past ten this morning salvage operations were under way. Four tugs made fast, stern and seven other power boats joined in pushing the big ship. After two hours' pushing and pulling she was loosened from the mud and was brought to a safer anchorage farther down the canal.

The Nichiyo Maru is of 10,000 gross tons, one of the newest ships in the service, launched only this

CITY RATIFIES POLICY CHANGE

Municipalities May Be Compelled to Enlarge Fire Protection Service

A move that may compel Saanich and Esquimalt to purchase more fire-fighting equipment was made in the City Council last night, when it endorsed the recommendation of the fire wardens that the city's fire equipment be not allowed to attend fires outside the city, other than Oak Bay municipality, and the military and naval barracks in Esquimalt.

This means that the fixed charge for sending a truck to outside municipalities, which was decided upon in 1925, is now annulled and the equipment will not be sent out. There was an understanding between the city and Saanich, although not of a written contract type, that city apparatus would attend fires at a fixed rate when called upon. There was no such agreement with Esquimalt, but the fixed charge remained, and that municipality could have availed itself of the policy set by the city in 1925.

Both Esquimalt and Saanich have one fire truck each, and in connection with the latter municipality, this truck has to cover fifty-eight square miles.

Three months' notice will be given Saanich of the city's change of policy, so that a readjustment in its fire-fighting department may be made if necessary. No calls will be responded to from unorganized districts.

Sun and Goldfish Bowl Cause Fire

PENN YAN, N.Y., Nov. 5 (CP).—Beware the incendiary goldfish bowl. Mr. and Mrs. James Sutton, today, were consulting artisans about repairs to their home after a fire caused by sun rays shining through a fish globe. Condensed by the curved sides to a neapoint of scorching heat, the rays ignited a pair of mittens lying nearby. Flames spread through the room, causing considerable damage.

GUNFIRE MOWS DOWN PARADERS

Three Killed and Nineteen Wounded as Machine-Gun Fire Sweeps Street

HAZELTON, Pa., Nov. 5 (AP).—Three persons were shot to death and nineteen others, including six women, were wounded, tonight, when machine gun fire swept a Democratic political parade at Kelayres, a mining village five miles south of here.

The crowd surged toward a brick residence, from which machine gunners were firing.

State police battled the crowd in an effort to keep it from dynamiting the house.

CLIMAX OF DISPUTE

The riot, coming on the eve of Pennsylvania's most crucial election in years, climaxed a long period of factional political strife in the little mining village of about 600 voters.

The Democrats were swinging down Kelayres' main street, banners waving and red fire-bricks flaring.

Suddenly shots blazed out from both sides of the street, raking the marchers in a deadly cross fire. From darkened second floor windows of two houses, said by police to be those of Joseph Bruno, Republican leader, and his nephew, Paul, came a spray of bullets.

WILD CONFUSION

Wild confusion developed. Most of the 600 residents of the mining village were crowding the main street.

Sheriff's deputies, augmented by a dozen state troopers, assisted in carrying the dead and wounded to hospitals and private homes.

Scores of the marchers accompanied the wounded for treatment. Others formed a flying wedge and stormed toward the two homes blamed for harboring the snipers. The crowd threatened to dynamite one.

Diggers Seek Many Kegs of Pirate's Gold

COLONIA, Uruguay, Nov. 5 (AP).—This port, on the River Plate, was in the throes of treasure fever tonight. A crew of men was digging an excavation thirty feet deep, fifteen feet broad and 800 feet long in the hope of finding a fabulous hoard which legend says was buried here by the pirates Moreau and Molina, in 1605.

Legend has it that Moreau and Molina took seventy kegs of gold from the ship Victory, of Peru, rounded Cape Horn and took refuge here. Some residents believe gold worth millions of dollars lies buried Farmer, J. W. Buckler and H. S. Bennett, contributed a short musical programme. Rev. G. A. Reynolds then gave an address on "Impressions of Europe, 1934."

SUNDAY SERVICES

On Sunday, despite the inclement weather, Rev. C. G. MacKenzie, pastor of the church, preached to large congregations at both morning and evening services.

The subject of the morning address was "A Faith for Today." Mr. MacKenzie declared each age needed its own faith. Faith, in turn, was the result of doubt, he said. "We are at present passing through a period of doubt, and we may emerge into a larger and richer faith if we have the courage to meet the situation," said the speaker.

Special music was provided by the choir, under the direction of J. W. Buckler. Mrs. Marjorie Goodwin offered solos.

In the evening, preaching before an extremely large congregation, Mr. MacKenzie discussed "Playing Fair With the Past." He pointed out that the past was considered to be romantic, when a glamour was thrown over it and its defects obscured. It was considered, as now, in a critical manner, all its defects being emphasized, Mr. MacKenzie said.

STEVENS DESIRES NEW TRADE LAWS

Government policy. On no occasion did I violate my duty by indicating the decisions which the committee might arrive at.

"What I did do I did with intent, and that was to indicate to my fellow Canadians what I, as a minister of the Crown and chairman of the committee, felt was wrong in the economic and business structure of this country. I have no apology for that because the committee, if it was to be of any value, needed the force of a solid and well-informed public opinion behind it."

SOUND SECURITIES

"If we are to have sound money at any or all costs, let us also have sound securities," pleaded Mr. Stevens.

The issue of worthless stock was just as vicious a form of inflation as undue inflation of the currency. Every $100 share of stock ought to be represented by $100 of real value of original investment.

This was far from being the case in Canadian companies, said Mr. Stevens, and he proceeded to show it by means of figures. In the two years, 1928 and 1929, he said, the companies increased by $5,425,000,000, and during that period the savings available for capital use were only $2,000,000,000. The latter amount was made up of $500,000,000 estimated annual savings of the people for capital use, plus $1,500,000,000 capital imported from abroad, with the transfer of property from private partnerships to corporate form accounting for the balance.

UN SOUND FINANCING

Among the results of this "unsound financing," Mr. Stevens listed the fact that out of 131 consolidations of businesses between 1921 and 1930, sixteen concerns, or 12 per cent, failed between 1929 and 1933; forty-eight concerns, or 37 per cent, incurred deficits; twenty-one concerns, or 16 per cent, showed steadily declining profits, and only fifteen concerns, or 11 per cent, showed an improved position.

Mr. Stevens then produced a summary of the earnings records of eighty-eight corporations which were financed between 1926 and 1930. In the operation, he remarked, the public was afforded the privilege of subscribing the cash while giving full control to the promoters.

Of these corporations, nineteen sold bonds to the public. In ten the bonds failed to earn interest, six went into receivership, and in nine the bond interest was earned.

Of forty-seven companies which sold deferred shares, eight went into liquidation, thirty failed to earn the preferred dividend, and nine had earned the dividend.

NO DIVIDENDS

Of thirteen companies which sold common stock to the public, three lost their identity, three earned a small dividend up to 1932, and seven failed to earn anything in recent years.

The summary, said Mr. Stevens, showed there was over-valuation of assets and over-capitalization, that in many cases there was no equity behind the common shares and that the promoters who frequently received common shares as a bonus gave nothing of real value for them.

Problems of company financing, he admitted, were complex and baffling, but there were certain rules which could be ascertained. It was to these primary causes that he demanded the legislative authorities of Canada should direct their attention, "let the chips fall where they will."

Germany was a country where much good had been accomplished through sound company laws, said Mr. Stevens. From 1884 down to the War period and since, Germany company law had been strict and had made impossible many of the practices which had brought ruin in Canada. The result was that Germany had a marvellously controlled economic life.

PRaises PRESS

Now that he was no longer chairman of the Royal Price Spreads inquiry, Mr. Stevens said he felt free to pay a tribute to the press of Canada for the way in which the inquiry had been reported during the last session of Parliament. Despite the "terrible influence" of large advertising agencies, "the press published the evidence from day to day." He had noticed thirteen pages of advertising from one institution in a Toronto paper.

"This," he said, "makes me doubly appreciative of the general attitude of fairness and recognition of new value which has characterized the press of Canada during these last ten months."

Lincoln's great dictum, "A government of the people, by the people and for the people," was the best possible definition of democracy, said Mr. Stevens. The last part, "Government for all the people," had not yet been put into effect.

MEN, NOT DOLLARS

"Men, not dollars," he said, "must be the determining factor in our country's destiny." The policy of drift could no longer be tolerated in matters that vitally affected the lives of thousands, he went on.

The doctrine, "I am not my brother's keeper," was out of date. An employer of thousands should not be permitted to say he was not responsible for their welfare. The example of such great corporations as the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways, which met their employees in a co-operative spirit, should be generally followed.

Too many men were willing and eager to take power and wealth without the responsibilities that went with them. The greater the wealth of the individual or the corporation, the greater the responsibility.

Retail merchants need not be unduly awed by their large corporate rivals, said Mr. Stevens.

FALLACIOUS DOCTRINE

A careful investigation would show that the argument that big business was more efficient, was a "fallacy, a delusion and a snare." "Here are a few typical 'mark-ups' of a great company," he said. "Pumiture, 32 to 101 per cent; clothing, overcoats, 43 to 143 per cent; men's suits, 38 to 111 per cent; ladies' coats, 34 to 231 per cent; misses' dresses, 25 to 287 per cent; toilet goods, 60 per cent loss (loss leader) to 150 per cent profit; shoes, 27 to 134 per cent; groceries, an average of 34 per cent."

"I will give you another example," said Mr. Stevens, "and no doubt the representative or the buyer for that institution is here tonight. He will report what I say back to his principals, but they can't call me on the carpet now anyway."

He said a company went to a manufacturer and asked for a woman's coat at $14 each to sell at $25.

Returning Officer
For City Election
Named by Council

M. F. HUNTER, city clerk, was appointed returning officer for the forthcoming civic election, by the City Council last night. E. E. Coady Johnson was appointed deputy returning officer.

Nomination day is December 6, and all nomination papers will be received in the city council chamber between 12 o'clock noon and 2 p.m. on that day. The election will be held on December 13.

Mr. Stevens, he had issued ninety authorities to prosecute certain chain store organizations in Toronto for short weights. Had he not been scrupulously careful, he could have issued 200. He would await the result with interest, because out of fifty-seven cases in Ottawa the department won fifty-five.

"If I had my way, and I may get a chance to try it yet," he said when he was interrupted by some loud applause. "I don't think you took that the way I meant it," he added. "I meant I might introduce a measure in this Parliament if it lasts long enough."

He said he would make it the law that store selling short weights might be padlocked for a certain period and a sign put up outside stating the reason.

WILL SPEAK OUT

He did not know the solution of all the problems, said Mr. Stevens, but he had some ideas in mind. He had been blamed by those who accused him of stating Government policy for not saying what could be done. He had refused to do so before the commission finished its work, but now that he was no longer chairman he proposed to exercise the liberty he had not abused.

Governments could not remedy all the ills of business, said Mr. Stevens. They could do some things he had suggested, and perhaps others, but much could also be done by business men themselves. Even the independent retail merchants could do a great deal if they organized and followed their leaders. First of all, however, they should see that they themselves were free from wrongdoing. He asked them to examine their own businesses and see if they were not guilty of some of the practices which they condemned.

URGES UNITY

"Alone you are ineffective," he said, "unite and you are irresistible."

If, for instance, a processor of foodstuffs sells one of his products below cost to the mass distributors and charges you 10, 20 or 30 per cent more, thus making you absorb his losses to your bigger competitor, why not buy such goods from others who do not do this thing and let such processor sell all his goods to the big account he values so highly and absorb his own loss?

If businessmen set out to put their own house in order there would be little need of laws, the former minister went on.

In introducing Mr. Stevens, George S. Hougham, secretary of the Ontario Retail Merchants' Association, said it had been reported that Mr. Stevens was a minority of one in the Cabinet. The meeting tonight showed he had a majority of hundreds of thousands among all classes of Canadians.

The meeting adopted the following resolution:

"That this meeting of retail merchants and citizens, representing every phase of political thinking, sincerely believing that the Hon. H. H. Stevens is not only the champion of new standards of commercial ethics, but is also the exponent of principles which in their application vitally affect the future of every Canadian citizen, expresses its appreciation of the fearless and impartial manner in which he is working in the interests of the people as a whole."

"We have confidence in him as being fearless and capable and expect the hope that he will be sustained in the courageous effort he is making to bring about fair trading practices in Canada."

honor by the East Windsor Businessmen's Association. Hon. Raymond D. Morand, Federal Conservative member for Essex, tonight declared he wished to publicly compliment Hon. H. H. Stevens "on his industry and human impulse that has prompted his work, the courage he has displayed, and to express my regret at his resignation caused by friction with a portion of the Cabinet."

In referring to Mr. Stevens' resignations as Minister of Trade and Commerce and chairman of the mass buying inquiry, Dr. Morand said he rejoiced that both Mr. Stevens and Prime Minister R. B. Bennett had agreed upon the former minister remaining as a member of the royal commission on price spreads and mass buying.

"I am prepared," continued the speaker, inasmuch as it is in my power as a member of Parliament, to back Mr. Stevens and the committee in order that a true picture of conditions in Canada may be brought to light and that there may be no sparing of friends or foes, and that legislation, as much as it lies within the ability of Federal legislative powers, be enacted so that humanity may receive a fair reward for labor."

The school director urged those present to go into the classrooms determined to "Learn of God, of the Bible, and the students wish to teach." "Seek truth at all times," stated Mr. Warr.

There are seven courses open to them at attendance at the school. Rev. Dr. E. A. Henry is conducting the class in "Studies in the Life of Christ." Dr. Henry is pastor of Fairfield United Church—Rev. ice was disrupted in a part of the downtown area for a short period, while a clogged drain caused a miniature lake at the corner of Douglas Street and Hillside Avenue. A fallen tree blocked traffic for a time on the West Saanich Road.

Since last Tuesday morning, a total of 2.64 inches of rain has fallen in the city. F. Napier Denison, director of the Gonzales Observatory, reported. This is more than half the average for the whole month of November.

From Up-Island points, similar reports of extremely heavy rains were received. J. Sykes, driver for the Vancouver Island Coach Lines, reported that from Cowichan Bay to Koksilah the road was covered with water, the flow reaching to the Chemainus River the water was two feet deep over the road.

The highway was submerged for a distance of one mile, two miles south of Chemainus. The road, however, is expected to be open to traffic, today, with the recession of the water. High tide contributed to the flooding. With low tide, there was a noticeable recession of the water from the river.

FLOODS IN WASHINGTON

SEATTLE, Nov. 5 (AP).—Warm Chinook winds and mile-a-minute gales whistled over Western Washington, today, deluging the country with water and threatening dangerous floods.

Several bridges were washed away; highways and streets inundated; mountain passes blocked by slides of snow and earth; rivers rapidly approached flood stage.

Small shipping was halted last night, but resumed today.

No lives were reported lost, although Mr. and Mrs. Roy Huribut, of Tacoma, were hurt when several tons of snow, rock and earth crashed down the mountainside of the Naches Highway, caving in the car's roof. Many other cars were stalled along highways, and it seemed that most passes would be closed. The state highway bridge at Quilicura was washed away.

RAINFALL RECORD

A rainfall record for the five-year period in November was made at Longview, where 1.23 inches fell in twenty-five minutes. Centralia had 1.53 inches in eighteen hours. In Longview, the Lewis River rose ten feet in twenty-four hours, menacing the dykes. At Bellingham, year. She is under the command of Captain Mural.

Divers will be sent down tomorrow to examine her hull.

All today the city has been hit by its ordinary water supply.

Breakage of the mains near the source of supply caused a complete breakdown, and emergency supplies have had to be taken to the hospital.

The mill of the Alberni-Pacific Lumber Company has had to shut down temporarily for want of water, and the sweeping away of bridges and track on the logging railways has caused a cessation of work in the woods.

TRAIN COMES BACK

The passenger train, which left here at 10 o'clock this morning, returned early this afternoon, having been unable to get past a big slide about fifteen miles out from this city. The section crew, reinforced by the bridge crew from Victoria, will work all night in the effort to get the line cleared.

The stage was unable to get through from here this morning, but the incoming stage arrived safely tonight.

The storm broke so suddenly that fishermen had to run to shelter, leaving their nets, and many of them are out tonight trying to salvage them.

The city itself presented a scene of havoc today, with all telegraph and telephone poles down throughout the district and communication by wire impossible until this evening.

HINDERS TRANSPORTATION

Heavy rains, accompanied by high winds over the week-end, disrupted Island transportation and communication services badly. Washouts along the E. & N. Railway were still being cleared last night, while bus lines are still being forced to detour at Cowichan Station, where the river has overtopped its banks, a check-up of the various transportation services revealed last night.

The Port Alberni section of the Island Highway bore the brunt of the damage, as also did this section of the E. & N. Railway. On this division of the railway, a rock slide thirty feet in length, two washouts, each thirty feet in length, and two slides, each sixty feet in length, were reported. The slides ranged from four to ten feet deep, and a special work train was dispatched to the sub-division to clear a way through. The train service on this run had to be cancelled yesterday.

RIVER OVERFLOWS

At Koksilah, the river overflowed its banks, causing one washout of a mile in length, and covering the tracks for half a mile in one section, and in another part it covered the track for a third of a mile, and caused another washout. The northbound train was delayed four and one-half hours, while the southbound train was delayed a little more than an hour. This section of the railway has been cleared, and made possible for handling traffic, although there is much work yet to be done. The Port Alberni division, it is hoped, will be opened by tonight.

Last night, the Vancouver Island Coach Lines were able to report a through service to Port Alberni. A detour is being made at Cowichan, while on the Alberni section, passengers are taken around a washout from one bus to another in a light sedan.

College Farmers Seek Solution of Many Problems

Active Research Being Conducted by University of British Columbia Agricultural Staff Despite Heavy Reduction in Facilities—Economic Aspect Is Kept to Fore

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 5 (CP).—A farmer's lone cow that gives poor milk, a droopy tomato plant, or failing clover crops in the Fraser Valley, are some of the scores of problems over which earnest young men spend their hours in the faculty of agriculture at the University of British Columbia.

The old adage that "necessity is the mother of invention" is perhaps nowhere better illustrated than there.

Originally operated under a policy which assumed that research was one of its major missions, reduction of grants in 1932 decimated its facilities and it had to set about to find a way to carry on with the materials at hand.

MANY ADJUSTMENTS MADE
"Today the faculty is once more working constructively," states Dean for. But the faculty has concentrated on putting its students to work on practical agricultural problems of the province. They are placed at tasks that give them training, and the solution of which will be of value to the farmer. The economic aspect is kept to the fore in all activities.

SOIL ACIDITY STUDIED
Acidity of the soil in the Fraser Valley has been a major study of Dr. D. G. Laird, specialist in soils, and the students under him. A cure, partial at least, has been prescribed.

Acidity in alluvial soil of the Mainland coast has been increasing over a period of years, to the point, in some instances, where it has become critical for the clover crop, so important to the dairy industry. Glacial soils do not seem to be affected.

Acidity, when it reaches a certain degree, brings aluminum in the soil to solution. Soluble aluminum combines with soluble phosphates with the effect that phosphates solidify and are unavailable for plant food. To this has been ascribed failing clover crops.

"We are safe in saying," states Dr. Laird, "that strongly acid soils should have applications of lime to counteract the tendency towards increased acidity. It would mean a great deal if clover production could be brought back to where it was twenty-five years ago."

Many farmers are growing crops not suited to conditions which have existed or developed. Through soil analysis they may learn what they can grow with most efficiency, or find out what is needed to correct conditions which handicap their efforts.

ALLIED STUDIES
Surprisingly enough, one hears of fish and pulp and paper in the Dairy Department. Because, as the former head of the department, the late Prof. Wilfrid Sadler, once remarked, dairying, fish, and pulp and paper are not so far apart, because they may all be looked upon as fermentation industries.

Dr. B. A. Eagles, acting head, presides among test tubes and slides where the bacteria, helpful and otherwise, of milk and cheese, are studied. It is here that the individual farmer with his lone cow producing poor milk may bring his problem. And they have been doing it during the depression. Communications have come especially from isolated parts of the Province, including Northern areas.

Hard-hip people who are doing the best to get along ask to know the why and wherefore of milk and cheese production because they need them for subsistence. They have been very appreciative of the aid extended.

That "necessity is the mother of invention" is well illustrated here. Lacking finances to have a sizeable cheese vat, Dr. Eagles displays two laboratory-built tiny ten-pound vats in which cheese processes are studied. Workmen of the university have built test-tube cabinets with controlled temperatures without extra cost. And they are declared superior for the purpose than any that could be bought.

Tomatoes growing in sand are a bit startling to the novice visitor at the horticultural department. They really don't grow from the sand, but are, in a sense, bottle-fed.

THE DROOPY TOMATO
Dr. G. H. Harris, assistant professor in the department, explains that plants are like human beings; sometimes they have a definite illness, easily recognized and for which a remedy may be applied. But sometimes, like humans, they become droopy, out of sorts, with no definite cause observable, and previously without visible symptom to aid in diagnosis.

It has now been found by experiment that most unknown ailments arise from faulty nutrition. The next problem is to find some outward symptom by which a dietary fault may be detected. Here enters the bottle-fed, sand-planted tomato. The sand has no food value ever, and is made sterile.

The plant grows only on what is poured around it. Dietary experiments can be made—too much of this given, not enough of that. And the result on the plant is observed. It has been found that dietary variations do produce observable symptoms, hitherto unrecognized, and, Dr. Harris states, it can be pretty well determined from external evidence what the particular nutrition fault is. The study covers a wide variety of subjects, and fortunately for the value of the experiments, the symptoms are generally the same in all crops. With the symptom of a dietary fault known, the farmer may be advised as to what must be added to his soil, or of what there is an excess. The fault may be corrected, or he may plant some other crop to which his soil is suited.

QUESTION OF FEED VALUE
Nutrition study has further revealed that some crops giving every appearance of well-being, lack the internal structure of a healthy plant. And this brings up the question of its feed value. Experiments such as sand-planting have been made previously with sterile water in the place of sand, but a nearby seashore provides a plentiful supply of a medium which gives nearer approach to natural growing conditions.

It may indicate a back-to-the-land tendency, but, at any rate, more students of matriculation standing or better are registered in agriculture than ever before at the university. In fact, in Canada, only at the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph are more students of similar standing engaged in studying agriculture. This is despite the fact that fees are higher here than elsewhere and there are no dormitories.

FULL OF PROMISE
The agricultural prospects of British Columbia are full of promise, Dean Clement feels, if its problems are tackled along proper lines. It is favored by climatic conditions free from natural disasters. Aside from the at present uncertain problem of export markets, there is still a large home market available, specially for meats, of which the province imports about fifty per cent of its consumption. And the young men who pour over test tubes and delve into the earth at the university under scientific instruction are possessed with the idea that development shall be along efficient lines, not only for the large producer, but for the small farmer who puts his stake in the soil.

SUGGESTION IS MADE FOR FUND
Merchants Asked to Assist Friendly Help by Pledging Donations in Goods

A new suggestion to bring to a successful conclusion the Friendly Help Welfare Association's drive to raise $43,500, was made, yesterday, by Stewart Clark, campaign manager, when announcing that at the close of yesterday's subscriptions totaled $21,461.

"If I may make a suggestion to our local merchants, especially to those dealing in foodstuffs, clothing, shoes and fuel, who have not yet subscribed to the fund, and who would like to, it is that instead of giving a cash donation they should sign a pledge card donating goods to the fund. The money for the donation to be spent in their stores," Mr. Clark said.

Following were the subscriptions acknowledged yesterday:

TOO BIG SHARE TO WHOLESALE
Federal Department Fish Expert Testifies as to Prices in the East

OTTAWA, Nov. 5 (CP).—J. J. Cowie, a fish expert from the Federal Department, put his finger on the price spread between wholesalers and retailers as the cause of low prices to Maritime and Quebec fishermen when he appeared, today, as a witness before the Mass Buying Commission.

"I think it is possible to give the fishermen a little more than they are getting without causing the consumers to pay more," Cowie told the commission. "It probably can be collected from the difference between the price to the wholesalers and the price they quote to the retailers."

NO SET SCHEME
There appeared to be no scheme that would give immediate benefit to impoverished fishermen, the witness proceeded. As general conditions improved, prices would advance and the industry return to prosperity.

But it was his opinion that in the present set-up, the wholesalers were getting too much money for their services.

A partial embargo against Newfoundland salmon, which has been ascribed in Canadian markets as the Gaspe product, was advocated by Eugene Morin, of Carleton Place. If this was too severe, salmon might be tagged to show their origin.

Although he did not favor an embargo, Cowie agreed it might be wise to tag salmon with the place of origin. "I see no reason why Newfoundland salmon should not be tagged, but I do not think it would be wise to tag our own salmon as to origin."

ON GASPE COASTS
The commission today investigated conditions among salmon and cod fishermen of the Gaspe coasts. Largely due to Government assistance in buying boats, engines and keeping boats fresh, general conditions were better than in the Maritime provinces. The only complaints of the Gaspe fishermen were the low price paid for their fish and isolated instances of dissatisfaction over grading.

NOVEMBER 25 IS 1934 LAY SUNDAY
Victoria Churchmen to Have Annual Opportunity to Take Part in Services

Victoria laymen will have an opportunity on Sunday, November 25, to delve more fully into the social and spiritual side of church life, since on that day the Lay Association, with the approval of the British Columbia Conference of the United Church of Canada, will sponsor the annual Lay Sunday.

Last year the first Dominion-wide effort was made by the Conference Lay Association to observe a special Sunday on which the lay members of the churches would take an active and prominent part in the services.

GENERAL THEME
This year a drive is being made to have this day observed in every United Church in British Columbia. The last Sunday in November has been set aside as this special day, but in churches where local arrangements make this day impossible, congregations are requested to make their own arrangements for the nearest possible date. The general theme suggested is "World Conditions and Their Challenge to Laymen in the Church," or in other words, the place of the church layman in business, the community and in government.

Each of the British Columbia presbyteries has been placed, in charge of a vice-president, who is anxious to assist in securing speakers for charges where it is impossible to get a local member to undertake the work. General arrangements for the day are in the hands of W. A. Gleason, 3486 West 16th Avenue, Vancouver, and Fred H. Fullerton, 3994 West 35th Avenue, Vancouver, president and secretary of the Provincial Lay Association.

HEARS ARGUMENT ON LIEN PLACED ON LOGS
In the County Court, yesterday afternoon, Judge P. S. Lampman heard evidence in the trial of C. Durante vs. W. Kennedy. In this action, the plaintiff sought to enforce a woodman's lien upon logs which had been cut by him in conjunction with others.

For the defendant, H. A. Maclean, K.C., took the position that the attempt on the part of the plaintiff to establish a lien failed, in view of the fact that he could not have filed it within the necessary time required by law. In any event, Mr. Maclean contended the claims of all were safe, as the logs had not been disposed of and all claims would be settled in due course.

Harold Tait, for the plaintiff, stated that the proceedings were in order. Judgment was reserved by the court.

FLIGHT ACROSS PACIFIC

Another outstanding flying venture is achieved by the successful passage across the Pacific Ocean from Australia to the United States of Sir Charles Kingsford Smith and his co-pilot, Captain P. G. Taylor. Sir Charles was to have been an entrant in the great Melbourne Centenary Derby, but damage to his machine prevented him from reaching England in time. He was determined, however, to justify the faith of his backers, and he came to the conclusion, as well, that the shortest way to return the machine to the United States was by flying there. He experienced heavy weather on the first leg of the journey from Brisbane to Suva. More favorable conditions were his lot on the longest leg from Suva to Honolulu, and from the latter point to Oakland.

Few if any flyers have a record to equal Sir Charles Kingsford Smith. In the number of successful flights accomplished he is the leader, and as expert a navigator in the air as exists today. It is true that it is wholly unlikely that he would have won the Mildenhall-to-Melbourne race had he been able to compete, because his machine could hardly have attained the same speed as was recorded by Scott and Black. The race, however, lost some of its glamour by his absence. That he would have done well in it is indicated by the manner in which he and his co-pilot have crossed the Pacific.

FIRST CANADIAN FAMILY

While due credit should be given to Jacques Cartier for being the first Canadian, in historical fairness it must be said that not till 1608 did settlers establish themselves in the new land. The honor of being the first Canadian family belongs to one Louis Hebert, his good wife, Marie Rollet, his two daughters, Anne and Guillemette, and a son who died young. Their home was the first one erected in the Upper Town, Quebec, and Hebert was the first colonist and the first head of a family who made his living from the soil he cultivated. This noteworthy Canadian holds other "firsts." His daughter, Anne, was the first white woman to marry and become a mother in Canada. The husband of his second daughter, Guillemette, is reputed to have been the first settler to turn Canadian soil with a plough. Further, Hebert's grand-daughter was one of the first eight Canadian-born brides.

Canada was born in adventure and grew up with struggle. Her pioneers fought with climate, Indians, epidemics and a reluctant soil. They were handicapped by their fewness. Not till thirty-four years after the founding of Quebec did the accumulated births exceed the number of deaths in that period. To encourage population, Intendant Talon gave grants to parents of ten and twelve children. Fathers were fined who kept under the parental roof bachelor sons of twenty years or unmarried daughters of sixteen summers.

New France also tried the plan that British Columbia followed some two centuries later in importing marriageable girls. To the Pacific Coast of Canada came the "bride ships" of 1862, with their precious cargoes of damsels, a hundred or more. On a much larger scale, France sent out between 800 and 1,000 young women during the period 1665 to 1673, to marry the soldier-settlers of the colony. With Gallic courtesy they were called "Les filles du Roi," and were given a handsome dowry, to wit, "an ox, a cow, a pair of swine, a pair of fowls, two barrels of salted meat, and eleven crowns in money." On the arrival of the annual ship-load of candidates for matrimony, "couples were wedded," says the contemporary chronicler, "by thirties at a time." Thus New France set a pace for Mussolini and Hitler.

A fine family life was developed in those days, as A. J. Pelletier describes in The Canadian Public Health Journal for October. Many of the mothers were convent-trained, very intelligent, and the homes were marked by reverence and good morals. Out of 11,773 births between 1621 and 1690 there were only two illegitimate. True, there were dangers. Everyone going to work or elsewhere carried a gun. Terrible epidemics of smallpox, typhus, whooping-cough, measles and scarlet fever did destructive work for a hundred and fifty years. A twenty-fold increase in population, in spite of obstacles, in less than a century evidences the vitality of the first settlers.

With the usual spirit of pioneers a brotherly feeling prevailed. The first Canadian families, whether French or English, were friendly and hospitable, as W. H. Moore has related in his book, The Clash. "The stranger—English or French—was made welcome in the home; and the guest of today was the host of tomorrow." The fires were kept burning under the kettle; pea soup and soup-pots were one and the same thing when served in the rough-hewn log houses. There was a difference between English and French, it is true; but it was that between p-e-a-s and p-o-l-i-s.

MR. H. G. WELLS ON SOCIALISM

Mr. H. G. Wells has written a book called "Experiment in Biography," which is a record of his own life, and, as might be expected, says The Manchester Guardian, it is exactly the sort of biography one expected from Wells—"sprawling, diffuse, enduringly vital." Perhaps one of its features is Mr. Wells' later-day appreciation of Socialism. At one time he was one of the most ardent converts, but experience has led him to become an apostate. He now expresses the frankest of views of his early association with the Fabian Society when he says:

"If anyone wants a real measure of the essential unfruitfulness of the Socialist movement, if he wants to realize how like it was to the bag of a hopeful but easily diverted collector into which nothing worth while was ever put, let him turn his mind for a moment to the adventure of flying. Let him compare the amount of hard work and detailed invention, the patient gathering and development of knowledge and experience, the generous mutual help and mental exchange, that have brought flying in a third of a century from a dream infinitely less hopeful than the original Socialist project to the world animating reality it is today. Side by side with that vigorous contemporary thrust of the human mind, the literature of Socialism is a pitiful repetition of passing remarks and ineffective promises. Is it any wonder that its name ceases to kindle and its phrases are passing out of use?"

MOVEMENTS IN MEXICO

Mexico seems to be moving in the direction of a totalitarian state which will control the thinking as well as the industry and government of the nation. It has established a State monopoly of education in all its types and grades which is Socialist in character and must exclude all religion. The control of the press is also a feature of the Government's policy, and the suppression of the two most important dailies published in the capital city was proposed in the Chamber of Deputies.

The effort of the Roman Catholic Church to carry out its traditional policy of educating its youth in religion has led to a prolonged conflict between the state officials and the hierarchy, which resulted in the Chamber of Deputies on October 19 voting the deportation of all bishops and archbishops from the country. In commenting on the policy of repression, The Christian Century, of Chicago, fittingly states that "you cannot advance the cause of liberty by the suppression of liberty."

Medical science so far has been stumped in finding a preventive for the common cold which attacks three out of every four men, women and children. The common cold costs Great Britain alone £15,000,000 per annum in lost working time. The cold weakens resistance to other diseases. To find out all about it, its cause and methods of prevention should stand well in the forefront of the task to which medical research is devoted.

THE HILLS

I will lift mine eyes to the hills,
For the hills are old and wise;
I shall find an answer there,
If I only lift mine eyes!
They will take my wayward will,
And return it to me blest,
And my heart shall learn of peace,
For the hills know how to rest.

I will lift my heart to the hills,
And the hills shall speak to me
Of the strength that can endure,
Of the quiet that is free,
And my spirit shall be soothed,
Though the valley-path is strait—
I will lift my heart to the hills,
For the hills know how to wait!

FRENCH AND ENGLISH IN CANADA

Like other early explorers Cartier had no idea where he was, believing, it is said, that he had reached China. He went back to Canada for the last time in 1541. It is fitting that his memory should be honored in the land where he blazed the trail. The French have built their Canadian country on the pre-revolutionary traditions of France. The English, who have ever respect for other independent and self-respecting people, have always looked on the French-Canadians as equals. The French-Canadians and the British-Canadians are equally proud of the two great nations from which they derive. Both these races have made a great contribution to the civilization, order and freedom of the world and each can admire the other for great qualities.—National Review (London).

INVENTIVE WOMEN

Nearly all the psychologists agree that the feminine mind is quick and intuitive, but always initiative, never inventive. And now, with the example of Mrs. Richardson, of Shepherd's Bush, before them, they can guess again, for she has won the first prize at the International Exhibition of Invention with her device for finding and identifying radio stations. She may puzzle the psychologists, but will surprise nobody who has seen the improvements any woman can make with string, hairpins, match-sticks, and other simple tools, on the crude man-made gadgets of her own kitchen. But woman still rocks the cradle by hand.—Manchester Sunday Chronicle.

The mellow year is hastening to its close;
The little birds have almost sung their last.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

Whether in sea or fire, in earth or air,
The extraneous and extrinsic spirit lies,
To his confine.

—Shakespeare.

That man is considered lucky who has been blessed with sound and durable constitution, for which he has to thank his ancestors. For a long time Canadians firmly believed they were lucky when the Fathers of their Confederation endowed them with a perfectly sound and enduring written constitution, embodied in the principles of the British North America Act. Surveying the conditions in Canada today we are not sure that any country which has no written constitution is not more blessed than any country with a planned and engrossed constitution. The United States, like Canada, has a written constitution, and experience has demonstrated that sometimes the United States constitution prevents things from being done which should be done, such as carrying out the obvious will of the people.

But there are certain conditions under which the United States constitution can be revised and amended. To be sure, the process of altering and improving the terms of the United States constitution is cumbersome and slow; but the thing can be done. There is some demand at the present time for amendments to the Canadian British North America Act, and the thing can be done, we are told, only by and with the consent of all the provinces, but there is one of the provinces which believes the B.N.A. Act is a perfect instrument after its kind and should not be altered at all because any amendment might be prejudicial to the interests of the people of the objecting province. This special attitude, if persisted in, might establish the B.N.A. Act as a permanent and unalterable instrument, like the fundamental laws of the dead and gone Medes and Persians.

On the other hand, Great Britain has no written constitution, only a long list of precedents and practices, which are frequently amended by the Imperial Parliament. A study of history proves that the Canadian British North America Act, while it was lauded by the fancy and its fathers, was soon found to be defective in some respects. It created friction between the provinces and the Dominion, not materially different from the friction which exists at the present time. Disagreements arose respecting the financial terms of union. We believe it was Oliver Mowat—but it may have been John Sandfield Macdonald—Premiers of the province of Ontario, who discovered, or alleged they had discovered, that their province was bearing the greater part of federal taxation. The province of Ontario was alleged by those two old Liberal leaders to be the financial Milch Cow of the Dominion.

Anyhow, it was as a consequence of the agitation of Mowat that the Imperial Privy Council placed interpretations upon the B.N.A. Act which enlarged the powers of the provinces and curtailed the powers of the Dominion. And the provinces are in the financial condition they are in today as a result of taking the utmost advantage of their enlarged powers. Would it be an extreme thing to say that today the Dominion is the Milch Cow of the provinces, and that unless preventive measures are taken the rich milch cow may be milked dry.

Take the case of the province of Alberta, whose Premier, lately elected to power upon extravagant promises to the voters, is in Ottawa demanding more than nine millions of dollars to meet an emergency which is not entirely a creation of the politicians. Saskatchewan already has extracted in various forms about fifty millions of dollars from the federal treasury, wants more and is not a bit shy in demanding more. We specify Saskatchewan because its case is representative of all the Western provinces and in a lesser degree of all the provinces. Such demands cannot be granted without serious consideration, because if not checked or regulated the Dominion treasury would soon be as empty as the provincial treasuries.

Saskatchewan is demanding a lump sum of nine millions of dollars, to be expended by the provincial government as it deems fit and without approval of the authority, representative of all the people of Canada, which supplies the money. It is within the power of the Dominion Parliament to demand an accounting of all public expenditures. How can any government render an accounting of its expenditures if it hands over lump sums to be expended by an irresponsible body over which it has no control and cannot be held responsible for its methods of expenditure? So the Prime Minister has told the Premier of Saskatchewan that his province will be given reasonable assistance, but the sum voted for relief must be spent under the supervision of the Dominion authority. If the provinces choose to run wild and look for the Dominion to help them out of difficulties created by their own excesses, there must be a check upon their demands. Any other course would be ruinous.

HISTORY OF ISRAELITES
Sir—One sees some strange things published in the daily papers at times, but I have never seen anything so strange and devoid of foundation as the assertion of Dr. C. M. Davies that the Israelites migrated from Jerusalem in 1700 B.C. The fact is that around that time the Israelites were still in Egypt, and it was not until the time of David, about 700 years later, that they captured Jerusalem. Further, the ten tribes, as such, never possessed Jerusalem at all; that city remained in the possession of Judah and Benjamin for centuries after the other tribes had been deported from the land.

Then we were told that the word "British" comes from the Hebrew word "brith," meaning covenant. Now the word for "covenant" in Hebrew is "berith," not "brith," and the relationship to the word "British"—One could just as reasonably argue that "Irish" indicates the descent of that people from the idolaters of Ur of the Chaldees: Thus "Irish" in Hebrew indicates "man" of Ir or Ur. You have to change a letter and divide the syllables, but what of it when you have a theory to establish.

Then the doctor asserted there were 800 root words in the Welsh language which have their counterpart in the Hebrew, not Jewish, language. Is not Hebrew the native tongue of the Jew, and is there such a thing as a Jewish language, properly speaking, other than Hebrew?

But, as to those 800 root words, one wonders if they were identified by the same process which changes berith into brith and British. However, assuming the statement is correct, does the fact that there are numerous Greek and Latin "roots" in the English language prove the descent of the British from those people. If so, what becomes of the British Israel theory?

CENOTAPH SERVICE

Sir—With great regret, most ex-soldiers of British Columbia will learn of the resignation of Archbishop A. U. de Pencier as chairman of the Remembrance Day Committee in Vancouver. Evidently this was brought about by Mr. Griffen, representative Archbishop Duke, of the Roman Catholic Church. According to The Province, Mr. Griffen explained that his archbishop wished a strictly non-religious service; and then pointed out that last year's ceremony included the Lord's Prayer; and adds: "I am forced to oppose the inclusion of the Lord's Prayer."

The result is that the Veterans of Vancouver adopted a resolution that churches, in future, will have only an advisory part in preparing Armistice Day service.

Then Mr. Robert Macnicol, in Legion Notes, and a letter to the press, has the presumption to enquire the length of the line with their heads and eyes turned to the right. I agree with your former correspondent that on that day we should pay tribute to the living as well as the dead. We pay tribute to the dead—who at least are at peace—who not give a thought to those who took the same risk, and have returned, many of them maimed, mangled, and not a few in dire poverty.

A tribute paid in this manner would impress the younger generation with the idea that the old chap hobnobbing along with a cane, or the shabby-looking individual, has suffered misfortunes in order that the younger of today can go his way in peace and freedom.

In conclusion may I quote from a recent radio talk: "A little taffy is better than an epitaph."

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

(From The Daily British Colonist of November 6, 1884.)

Boy Lost—A little fellow, about two years old, was crying his eyes very red and his voice very loud on Port Street yesterday afternoon. A trio of girls passing from the ladies' college, gathered round him, and taking the youngster by the hand, they brought him up the street to his home, where they left him happy.

Castleton Company—The Kate Castleton Company has been engaged to play in Victoria by J. H. Rowe, the energetic theatrical manager. The company will be seen on November 17 and 18. Miss Castleton herself will be with "The Bristol," and is the original of "For Goodness Sake, Don't Say I Told You." The public may look forward to a great dramatic event.

Prince Consort—It is stated that Prince Victor, eldest son of the Prince of Wales, will visit Canada and come overland to British Columbia next year. Victoria will extend him a right royal welcome.

The Marinettes—The matinee of the "Marinettes" yesterday afternoon drew a large audience, principally ladies and children, who were delighted with the charming entertainment.

ANNUAL SESSION OF GROUPS HELD

Y.M.C.A. Committees Hear Reports of Work Done by Local Association

Despite the steady downpour of rain, Sunday, the annual committee conference of Y.M.C.A. officials was conducted with great success at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Jameson, Sooke. It was clearly pointed out by committee reports presented, that the local association was in a sounder shape today than at any other period.

The object of this annual convocation is to acquaint members of various committees with the work being carried out by other groups in the association.

Development was being forward in the physical department, stated Archie Willis, in submitting this section's report. E. G. Rowbottom, who reported on the membership committee drive, said 285 new enrollments had been received, against 184 and 155 in 1933 and 1932, respectively.

THREE REPORTS
Better work could be done if the Y.M.C.A. had more money, reported J. O. Cameron, in presenting an account of the finance committee. W. T. Strath told of the Boys' Work Department, while Frank Paulding spoke on education, house and religious and foreign-section reports.

After supper a sing-song was conducted by Frank Paulding, H. B. Witter, president of the association, presided.

Those who attended the conference were: Mrs. W. A. Jameson, Miss Mildred Saxe, Miss Mary McKeown, Miss Mary McKeown, Mr. and Mrs. E. Dickinson, Miss Dorothy Armstrong, Miss Margaret James, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Cameron, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Witter, Mrs. N. M. Mitchell, Miss W. B. Maxwell, Col. D. McGugan, F. Partington, W. CALLED BY DEATH*Sir Alfred Gilbert Passes Away at London—Often Called "Modern Cellini"*LONDON, Nov. 5 (CP).—The world of art today mourned the death of Sir Alfred Gilbert, widely regarded as England's foremost sculptor and goldsmith.He died yesterday, in his eighty-first year, after being ill since June last. The last few days he had been confined to his bed.Sir Alfred's Canadian wife, the former Alice Jane Gilbert, of Ottawa, predeceased him by eighteen years.Sir Alfred Gilbert often was called "the modern Cellini." Brilliant in his handiwork, he was sensitive to criticism and aloof from his patrons.
Twenty years in the middle of his career were shrouded in mystery, for he was a temperamental artist, and after reaching his zenith, just after 1900, he left England with a vow never to return. After working for two decades in a studio at Bruges, Belgium, he was induced, five years ago, by King George, to return to finish the tomb of the Duke of Clarence, the King's elder brother.
The memorial had been started thirty years before.GUESTS OF HONOR

propriate solo was sung by Miss

Island in St. Lawrence*PARIS, Nov. 5 (AP).—Senator Gaston Menier, seventy-nine, the "chocolate king" of France, died at his home, in Paris.Senator Menier was well known in Canada, for he once owned Anticosti Island, in the St. Lawrence, selling it, however, in 1926.He was killed and beaten by Paris mobs, during the rioting last February in the French capital, but renounced later that he had not been hurt.Gaston Menier was a member of the Chamber of Deputies, from 1898 to 1909, in which year he became a senator for the Marine Department, holding his seat ever since. He was a member of the Left Democratic group, part of the alliance of Progressive parties known as the cartel

dent of the Army Commission.The senator took over the chocolate business developed by his father, the late Emile Justin Menier, who purchased large cocoa planta-

NOT CRITICAL*Four Hurt in Four Accidents
Due to Poor Visibility
Over Week-EndPoor visibility, due to rain over the week-end, yesterday had been responsible for four accidents, in which four persons were injured, two of them seriously enough to be sent to hospital.The injured are:
John Seath, Tanner Road, Saanich, head injuries and shock.Alex. Sutherland, 2815 Shakespere Street, head injuries.
Macer Okamoto, Japanese, Whittler Avenue, Saanich, knee cuts and abrasions.F. Homan, 742 Burdett Avenue, torn leg ligaments and abrasions.
None were critically injured, and all were reported by hospital attendants to be progressing satisfactorily.STRIKES POLEMr. Seath was injured early Sunday morning, when the car he was driving north on East Saanich Road near Elk Lake was in collision with another machine driven south by
R. W. Todd, 1449 Grant Street. Following the impact, Mr. Seath's car careened to the side of the road and crashed into a telephone pole. His wife and young son, who were with him, escaped uninjured, as also did the driver of the other car. Sergeant P. K. Cummings and Constable J. Bull, of the Saanich police, attended the scene, and removed
Mr. Seath to St. Joseph's Hospital, where he was attended by Dr. J. S.
McCallum.The injuries to Mr. Sutherland were sustained when he was walking east on Hillside Avenue beyond the Cedar Hill Road intersection.
He was struck by a car driven in the same direction as he was walking by John C. McRae, of Cedar Hill Road. Mr. Sutherland was taken home, but after being examined by Dr. Walter Bapty, was ordered removed to the Jubilee Hospital, where his condition is reported as improving.Macer Okamoto was riding his bicycle north on Douglas Street
Saturday evening when he was struck by a car driven in the same direction by Benjamin Birch, of Crease Avenue, Saanich. The accident occurred near the intersection of Roderick Street. The cyclist was thrown onto the gravel shoulder of the road and sustained painful but not serious injuries.Mr. Homan, aged seventy-seven years, fell to the pavement on Courtney Street, after allegedly walking into a car driven west on Courtney Street by W. L. McIntosh, of 1509 Shasta Place. The accident occurred Sunday evening. Mr. Homan was taken to his home, where Dr. George Hall attended him. Informed that there were witnesses to the accident and he would like these

What Today Means"SCORPIO"If November 6 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m., from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. and from 8:30 to 7:30 p.m. The danger periods are from 7:30 to 9:30 a.m., from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. and from 10:30 p.m. until midnight.You may be agreeably surprised by the thoughtfulness of a friend on this November 6. Your financial resources might possibly be increased through an unexpected source of supply. You may be confronted by a very humorous situation, which might possibly involve you in a pleasantly surprising adventure, if you meet a friend, who is from another section of the country. You will possibly meet a person whose charming personality will make a deep impression on you, and if you are not already married, may become very attentive. Be careful how you authorize your name to be used in either some form of testimonial endorsement or appeal for subscriptions. Social activities of a very formal type on this date might become extremely tiresome, but if slightly unconventional they should terminate most successfully. Married and engaged couples, as well as new victims of Cupid's darts, will avoid trouble if they guard against making tactless remarks ridiculing some pet obsession of the opposite sex.If a woman, and November 6 is your birthday, you are of a very artistic temperament, with a deep appreciation for the finer things in art, literature and music. You possess high ideals, many of which you are likely to see realized.
Music, painting, sculpturing and dramatic directing offer one of your nature the chance to build up a worth while reputation, as well as a handsome income. It might prove wise to be careful not to permit yourself to indulge in temperamental outbursts with family or friends. You are the type that can successfully follow both a professional as well as a domestic career, so you would not make a mistake if you marry.The child born on November 6, when it reaches its teens, should use its hands with surprising ease.
Lessons in either drawing, music, or elocution may eventually be very helpful in this child's future life.
If a man, and November 6 is your natal day, cultivate people whose taste is similar to yours. You have a great deal of discernment, as well as discrimination. As a dramatic or critic, painter, sculptor, author or clergyman you might find your

CITY COUNCIL ARE AROUSED

Will Protest Relief Policy—Premier's Treatment Is Viewed as Insult

A formal protest against the present unemployment relief policy of the Provincial and Dominion Governments will be forwarded by Mayor David Leeming on behalf of the City Council to the Premier of Canada, the Premier of British Columbia and every member of the Legislature.

This action was decided upon at last night's meeting of the City Council, after it was explained by the Mayor that similar action will be taken by every other municipality in the province. A review of the negotiations of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities for an audience with the Provincial Cabinet was also given at the meeting.

The Mayor outlined his financial survey of the new burdens imposed upon Victoria, while Alderman Dr. J. D. Hunter elaborated upon some of the social service phases of the survey, and sponsored the motion of protest.

Says Hollywood Will Make More Musical Pictures

Musical comedies of the screen have found much favor with theatre-goers all over the country, and there is every indication that Hollywood motion picture producers will continue, for some time to come, to produce this type of entertainment, it was explained by Richard Day, art director with United Artists in Hollywood, in an interview at the Empress Hotel, last night.

Mr. Day is spending a few days in the city in order to visit his mother, Mrs. Robert S. Day, 917 Burdett Avenue, who is at present confined to the hospital.

In general, the trend in the motion picture business is the making of better films, based on works of great writers, the visitor said.

The film industry stood up well under the depression, although more money was used in making the various films, he continued. Settings for the various productions became more elaborate as executives endeavored to produce "bigger and better" pictures.

COMEDY GIVEN FINE WELCOME

Little Theatre's Presentation of "Hay Fever" Delightful Entertainment

Noel Coward's sparkling comedy, "Hay Fever," was the happiest of choices for the Victoria Little Theatre Association's opening production of their 1934-1935 season. An audience that filled the Shrine Auditorium to capacity gave the players an overwhelmingly flattering reception last evening, and on the strength of their success in this initial performance there is little doubt that succeeding productions of the year will be generously patronized.

CLAIMS INSULT

"I have said this before, but I think it will bear utterance again. We should never have assumed the responsibility of relief from the start," declared Alderman R. A. C. Dewar. "It is a Federal issue. I, too, am in favor of drastic action. I thought you were going to ask us to protest against the treatment you received from Premier Pattullo. I think it was most disgraceful. I accept it as an insult to myself and my fellow citizens, when representatives of the union, who themselves are representing the bulk of the taxpayers of this province, are treated with such outrageous discourtesy."

DEMOCRATIC VICTORY AT POLLS PREDICTED

may bring about an unprecedented situation here—a Democratic President, a Senate with a sufficient weight of party vote to ratify foreign treaties, and House overwhelmingly Democratic to bring up whatever financial legislation the administration may require.

A Roosevelt triumph of proportions—James A. Farley, Postmaster-General, says "A Roosevelt tide is running full in this country that will not be denied"—would possibly result in a realignment of the party system in the United States, observers believe.

REPUBLICANS DIVIDED

With many Republicans adhering through belief or for reason of policy to the Roosevelt ideology and with some conservative Democrats in opposition, it is not inconceivable the prophets point out, there might develop a definite cleavage to the right or left before the Roosevelt advent there was but small actual distinction between the political philosophies of the Democrats and Republicans.

MERRIAM FAVORED

Californians bet 5 to 1 that Frank P. Merriam, Republican candidate for governor, defeats Upton Sinclair. The novelist, who says he is a Democrat and proposes to end poverty in California by taking over a few things, remains defiant to the end. In any case the result will be a victory for the new deal, since Merriam stands for Rooseveltism.

"This can and should be materially increased," Colonel Pousette told the conference.

Numerous applications for membership were received by the association, important among these was the Canadian Automobile Association, with which is affiliated the motor leagues in the various provinces.

The convention adopted resolutions calling for the Federal, provincial and municipal Governments to keep the highways of the Dominion free from obstructions that would mar the scenic beauty of the country; that the trans-Canada highway be rushed to completion as a stimulus to inter-provincial travel as well as tourist traffic from the United States; that all tourist organizations throughout the Dominion use the Canadian Travel Bureau as a clearing house to exchange literature in recognition of the fact that the tourist was essentially a traveler interested in various sections of the country; that the Federal Government be asked to increase the appropriation of the Canadian Travel Bureau to $500,000 in 1935 in recognition of the work already accomplished by the bureau in the few months of its existence.

BOUQUET FOR THE PRESS

The press of Canada was paid a tribute by Colonel Pousette, Senator Dennis and Mr. Dolan for the co-operation extended in making Canada tourist conscious, and the convention approved a resolution to this effect.

Officers elected by the Canadian Association of Tourist and Publicity Bureaux include:

President, Colonel G. C. Pousette, Winnipeg; honorary president, Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals; honorary vice-president, Senator W. H. Dennis, Halifax; honorary past presidents, J. E. Perrault, Quebec; C. C. Hele, Toronto; first vice-president, Dr. Leo Dolan, Ottawa; second vice-president, C. H. Webster, Vancouver; third vice-president, A. Bergeron, Quebec; fourth vice-president, J. O. Hambleton, Toronto; secretary-treasurer, George A. McNamee, Montreal.

SAYS CHARLES ABSURD

"Why, it's absolutely absurd, ridiculous, preposterous!" exclaimed Sir Charles. "The idea of this fellow charging that he advanced money to me! He might have bought me a cigar, but if any money was advanced I advanced it to him. I mean to fight him to the last."

The total of $2,750 means that Sir Charles must post bond of $5,500 before he can go ahead with his announced intention of selling the Lady Southern Cross here.

City Marshal Jerry Wenger moved into the hangar where the sleek ocean-spanner was housed. Wenger drew a chair, balanced it back against the hangar wall, crossed his legs, and took up his vigil.

Under the suit filed by Attorney P. M. Bokosky, City Marshal Charles R. Thomas was directed to "take, hold and possess" the Lady Southern Cross, and that was the task assigned to Wenger.

CREDIT TO NAVIGATOR

Sir Charles, meanwhile, slept soundly at the hotel of his friend, P. G. Morris, as did Captain Taylor, to whom Sir Charles modestly assigned the major portion of the credit for the hazardous flight.

Sir Charles said that if he found a way to pay his debts and to purchase the ship himself from his backers, he would consider attempting to beat the recent record established in the 11,903-mile flight from London to Australia.

"You know, one becomes very fond of a ship that serves you so safely and so well. We don't want to part with it if we can avoid it."

"And, if we are fortunate and make enough money so we can own her, then the London-to-Melbourne said the police regretted the inconvenience caused, but maintained "the technical correctness of their arrest."

There was considerable mystery as to why Miss Steele, whose mother is in Europe with her, did not immediately notify the State Department of her predicament. The word of her arrest was received here in a telegram, October 16, from Senator Borah, of Idaho, who acted on behalf of her brother, Arthur Steele, Mapa, Idaho.

NO INDICTMENT MADE

Douglas Jenkins, consul-general at Berlin, today reported she had been arrested by secret police, with no indictment for her arrest yet made. American consular officers conferred with her several times, but apparently have not yet been able to move the Nazi Government toward disposal of the case. The girl reported she had been kindly treated.

Rolderer was arrested while trying to cross from Landau, Germany, into Switzerland, allegedly for suspected violation of currency regulations, which forbid transfer of appreciable sums of German marks outside the country.

There were intimations, however, that the charge against him was much more serious.

UNSATISFACTORY RESULTS

The American consul at Munich reported, on July 11, that papers on his case had gone to the Department of Justice in Berlin, where the American consul pursued the matter with unsatisfactory results.

The Berlin People's Court officials reported that they did not have all the facts. The consul said he would pursue the matter further.

Victoria's Lack of Junior High School Noted in Education

D. L. MacLaurin Gives Interesting Facts Concerning Educational Administration in Address to Local Council of Women in Y.W.C.A.

IN the provincial educational system, Victoria was conspicuous for its lack of junior high schools, D. L. MacLaurin, assistant superintendent of education, told the Local Council of Women in the Y.W.C.A., yesterday afternoon, in the course of an admirably concise and informative resume of "Educational Administration in British Columbia."

Mr. MacLaurin dealt with the three phases of educational administration: direct administration, under the Department of Education; local administration, by school districts; and the types of schools administered.

The Department of Education operated under the Ministry of Education, and had to administer the Public Schools Act and advise the Council of Public Instruction with regard to all matters relating to education.

SUPREMACY CONTROL
The Council of Public Instruction had supreme control in educational affairs such as the opening of schools and the providing of educational grants, the two officials in charge of the general direction and supervision of education being the deputy minister of education (Dr. S. J. Willis) and the assistant superintendent (Mr. MacLaurin).

Under these came other officers, in two groups, viz., the internal officers of the department and the external officers of the department. The internal staff included the registrar, in charge of the records, the issuing of teachers' certificates, and similar matters; the officer in charge of the high school correspondence course created for students (about 700 in number) in outlying districts who could not follow the regular courses; the officer in charge of elementary school correspondence courses (276 last year), and the officer in charge of the textbook branch; the chief clerk, whose duty it was to keep account of all expenditures.

EXTERNAL OFFICERS
On the "external" staff were included the two inspectors of high schools, the eighteen inspectors of elementary and superior schools throughout the province; the director of home economics; the officer in charge of technical education; the principals and staffs of the two provincial normal schools; the city superintendent of schools, Vancouver; two assistant inspectors; the municipal inspectors of schools in Victoria and New Westminster, and others.

There were next cited the main sources through which government moneys were distributed for educational purposes throughout the province, as grants towards teachers' salaries; for nurses and dental surgeons' salaries; for conveyances for children in rural districts; toward the construction of school buildings; as grants towards equipment at the time of the establishment of manual training and home economics courses; for school library assistance up to $50; as specialized aid in any district where such was deemed necessary by the Council of Public Instruction.

LOCAL ADMINISTRATION
Mr. MacLaurin gave a skeleton outline of local administration of schools, showing that schools are graded in this sense as first, second and third class. City school districts of the first class were entitled to seven trustees, and the second class to five trustees, and of the third class to three trustees. The basis of classification was on numerical attendance. Some school districts did not have school boards, among these being the areas described as "company towns"; districts where the people had fallen so far in arrears with their taxes that no one was eligible to hold office; districts where the people could not get along amicably, and other districts where the council might deem it advisable to appoint an official trustee.

The qualification for trustee differed essentially from the qualification of voter in that the former had to be resident in the district for which he intended to run. In all districts, the board of school trustees was responsible for the appointment and dismissal of teachers.

TYPES OF SCHOOLS
Under "types of schools" were mentioned elementary schools, junior high schools (for Grades VII, VIII and IX), superior schools (Grades I to X), high schools (Grades IX to XII), commercial high schools, technical schools, manual training and home economics departments and night schools. Accommodation had to be provided for pupils from six to eighteen years of age, and might be provided for children from five and one-half years to over eighteen. Free education had to be provided for all under eighteen years of age who had not yet completed Grade XII.

In the school year just ended, 3,673 teachers were employed throughout the province under the Department of Education, 1,283 of the number being men and 2,390 women. The average salary was $1,230 per annum. The total number of schools in the province was 1,164, and the total number of pupils, 115,000.

EDUCATIONAL GRANT
The educational grant at the last session of the Legislature was $3,347,940, of a total budget of $21,600,000, showing that over one-seventh of the total went toward education. With the supplementary moneys supplied by the various school districts, in the neighborhood of $9,000,000 was spent on education in the year.

Mrs. C. C. Spofford, the council president, vacated the chair for a few minutes while Dr. Jardine, convener of the citizenship committee, introduced and thanked Mr. MacLaurin.

Girl: If you were me, dear, would you accept Jerry?
Chum: If I were you, dearie, I'd accept anyone.

Puppet Show Will Be Held

Plans for a puppet show, to be held in December, were made at the monthly meeting of the Jubilee Hospital Junior W.A., yesterday afternoon, at the Nurses' Home, the president, Mrs. John A. Stewart, in the chair. A clever troupe of Vancouver girls will present the show, and further details of its presentation will be announced later.

The possibility of establishing an out-patients department at the Jubilee Hospital was also discussed at the meeting, and the members showed keen enthusiasm in the proposal.

Members were asked to assist in a fund being started by the Graduate Nurses' Association to assist in providing employment for nurses and as a benefit for patients who are unable to afford the services of a qualified nurse. It was decided to arrange tables of bridge in the homes of individual members in aid of this most worthy cause.

"THE CHILD"
By REGINALD H. WIGGINS, M.D., C.M., L.M.C.C.

MORE ABOUT PREVENTION
To continue from yesterday's talk on prevention—the hosts of inadequately nourished children are a social outrage. This condition could have been nipped in the bud by the right kind of food (the right type of food is of greater importance than the quantity) and rational habits of eating and hygiene instilled in the child at an early date: spinal curvature could have been almost entirely averted by proper habits of sitting and standing and walking, deep breathing and inculcating in the child the habit of his own physical fitness and appearance. These quarters of the cases of defective hearing or deafness could have been avoided by adequate ear cleaning and after an attack of a contagious disease. We can very largely prevent tuberculosis by deep breathing, and it can be eradicated through adequate social and economic conditions in the home.

The five rules of prevention:
1. Make full use of fresh air and sunshine (to bare skin) and pure water (inside and out).
2. Instill adequate and sensible health rules.
3. Have the child examined at least three times a year by the child's physician.
4. Before school, assure yourself that the child is physically fit, and avail yourself of all protective measures modern science has evolved.
5. Avoid fatigue, and give proper food advised by those who know.

POST LOST BY IRREGULARITY

Alderman Andrew McGavin
Declares He Will Not Be Made "a Monkey Off"

A civic employee, who yesterday was enjoying the assurance of a permanent position on the parks board payroll, last night found himself out of employment, all because of an irregularity upon which the council could not compromise.

At the last meeting of the council, the man was appointed caretaker of the Macdonald Park. His appointment was disputed by Aldermen Walter Loney and Andrew McGavin, who took the stand that applications should be called for inasmuch as this was a policy set out by the council, in a by-law, when new posts had to be filled.

The parks board took the stand that it was not a new appointment, but merely a promotion, since the man had been employed by the city on a daily basis for the past seven years.

MAKES THREAT

"If you're not going to keep the by-laws of the city, I'll get out. I'm not coming here to be made a monkey off," Alderman McGavin declared, when discussing a motion calling for reconsideration of the appointment.

Alderman Loney contended Macdonald Park was a new park, and that the caretaker of the place was a new job and, therefore, should be filled by calling for applications.

The Mayor sought to bring about a reconciliation of the two factions of the council. Aldermen R.

A. C. Dewar, John A. Worthington, James Adam and Dr. J. D. Hunter were among those who felt that filling the position was more in the line of a promotion.

When the motion calling for reconsideration of the appointment failed to carry, the employee was automatically let out of his job, since the appointment was made irregularly, and therefore not made at all, according to a ruling given by the council.

MANY APPLICANTS

Later in the evening applications for the position of patrolman on the Sooke Lake waterline were read. There were 156 applications for the one job.

It was at this point that Mayor Leeming expressed the hope that the City Council's policy on appointments would be changed so as to provide for the promotion of temporary employees to permanent positions.

"This sort of thing not only wastes the council's time, but raises false hopes among many who are without work," the Mayor said, alluding to the large number of applicants for the one position.

The applications were referred to the water committee and the Mayor for recommendation back to the council. However, the council at its last meeting considered the promotion of a temporary employee to the post, but failed to make the appointment owing to the controversy over the Macdonald Park position.

Court Reserves Its Decision

Mr. Justice Murphy, in the Supreme Court here, reserved his judgment after hearing the case of John Dumas vs. New Method Laundry, which was in progress before him for a week's time. Additional evidence was taken yesterday as rebuttal testimony, which was followed by the address of counsel, P. C. Elliott, for the plaintiff, and David Tait, for the defendant.

LAND POLICY MAY CHANGE

City Asks Committee to Recommend Advisability of Taking Lots Off Market.

An important change in the city's land policy loomed at last night's meeting of the council, when Ald. Walter Loney alluded to the possibility of a reverted lot as nothing short of ridiculous.

"It's time we stopped selling property unless for the assessed value," he declared, and his subsequent arguments, supported by those of Mayor David Leeming and Ald. R. A. C. Dewar, chairman of the land committee, resulted in the council referring the question to the land committee for a recommendation as to whether the reverted lots should be taken off the market or the assessed value fixed as the selling price. The city has 3,700 reverted lots.

"We are undermining the value of other people's property by the method we have adopted," Alderman Loney declared.

WANTS DECISION

"I agree with you," Alderman Dewar stated. "I should like to have a decision from the council as to whether we should take the land off the market."

Mayor Leeming, in pointing out that this was a matter he had brought up shortly after he first took office, declared that a company he belonged to bought $15,000 of city property at the auction sales, had paid the interest rates and taxes on lots for quite a number of years. "And now the city owns them again," he ended, illustrating his argument more forcibly thereby.

The Mayor also pointed to a recent issue of a Vancouver newspaper in which five pages were taken to advertise all the properties that would be knocked down to the highest bidder at the annual tax sale.

visit the islands and had invited scientists of other countries. It is said he saw no reason why the United States or any other country should want to take possession of a battleship when Japan herself had organized a general scientific expedition.

The Japanese diplomat assured the commission the islands were entirely open to visitors.

The chairman of the League's mandate commission, Marquis Theodor, of Italy, frankly told it about press reports concerning Japan's refusal to admit foreign warships and visitors, including an Anglican bishop. This, he said, created "suspicion."

ONLY NATURAL

It is said the reports should not be taken too seriously, but added, according to League officials, that, when Japanese naval manoeuvres were held in the Western Pacific and in the vicinity of the mandated islands, it was only natural that visitors should not be welcomed there.

The chairman specifically asked why Japan felt the necessity for expending in 1933 a total of 800,000 yen for the development of four harbors in the islands. It answered that the reason was that Japan wished to enlarge these harbors so as to permit anchorage of larger liners which it wished to send there.

The chairman insisted it was Japan's interest to remove suspicions concerning fulfillment of her mandate, and said he believed a more adequate reason should be given for deepening and developing the harbors. His insistence and the wording of the question was taken to mean a reference to rumors that Japan was constructing naval bases.

It is said after the session he had confidentially informed the mandate commission, not to go on the official records, that the harbors in question were so small and so devoid of hinterlands that from a technical standpoint it would be useless for Japan to think of developing naval or submarine stations there.

MRS. L. WRIGHT BADLY BEATEN

Is Taken to Hospital After Being Attacked in Her
Home by Housebreaker

Mrs. Lorne Wright, aged sixty, of 1937 Blanshard Street, last night was in the Jubilee Hospital recovering from a brutal attack made upon her by a housebreaker early Sunday morning.

About 12:30 a.m. Mrs. Wright was awakened by a severe blow on the head. Her assailant continued to beat her, and when she screamed, fled.

Mrs. Wright's injuries include two broken bones in one of her hands, a gash over the left eye, and a blackened right eye.

At 4:25 a.m., Mrs. H. Graham, of the Woolworth Apartments, was disturbed from her sleep by a man striking her forehead.

Police are investigating, and believe they have a suspect.

POLICY CHANGE IS GRATIFYING

Children's Aid Society Directors Give Council Preliminary Report of Work

Directors of the Children's Aid Society advised the City Council, last night, that it was most gratified with the results of the change in policy with regard to the housing of wards.

Placing children in private homes had resulted in an improved condition for the children, with all the advantages of real home life, and made for a much more economical administration.

A more detailed financial report on the matter will be given the council, the directors said, so that a study can be made as to whether it would be advisable to reopen the old institution on Pandora Avenue.

RADIO STATION ANSWERS CITY

The City Council's attention was drawn, last night, to the fact that Victoria's radio station had undergone considerable improvement, particularly in its sound equipment, during the past twelve months, and that no complaints had been received in the past six months.

The Victoria Broadcasting Association, in a letter to the council, stated that it was improving its broadcasting facilities consistently, and that during the past ten years had invested in equipment and broadcasting facilities far more money than the council perhaps realized.

It was further pointed out that the station receives no financial support from the city, and that before making any further criticism of the station, the council could at any time inspect the studios with a view to ascertaining the true state of affairs.

Priest-Doctor Relates Incident in Day's Work

A touching account of an incident in the life of the priest-doctor of the Columbia Coast Mission has been forwarded from Dr. Thomas A. L. Connolly, of St. Mary's Hospital, Pender Harbor. The account is as follows:

"Weeping cries, sighing trees, and the cry of seagulls amid desolate splendor, formed the setting for the disposal to rest of the tired body of an aged mother last week."

"Four days previously the priest-doctor at St. Mary's Hospital, Pender Harbor, received a call to attend a sick woman late one night. A long journey in the launch of a friendly schoolmaster who, with true Canadian neighborliness had offered to be a good Samaritan and fetch the doctor, led us in the darkness through the tranquil waters of tree-fringed creeks to the innermost corner of the harbor. After clambering over rocks, past sleeping huts, we arrived at length at the wooden shack which sheltered the sick woman."

"The family were huddled in the one living room by a dim oil lamp,

CANDIDATURE IS ENDORSED

Mrs. D. L. MacLaurin Given Official Support in Campaign for School Trustee

A resolution endorsing the candidature of Mrs. D. L. MacLaurin for school trustee at the forthcoming civic elections here was unanimously passed at a meeting of the Local Council of Women held yesterday in the Y.W.C.A.

Dr. Jardine was appointed convener of a committee for the general management of Mrs. MacLaurin's campaign, which is to have the official support of the council. In this connection, a committee will be appointed to work on the voters' list as soon as it is available.

RESOLUTION OF PROTEST

The council wholeheartedly endorsed, and is forwarding to the national council with the recommendation that a copy be sent to the Federal Government, the resolution recently passed by the Business and Professional Women's Club protesting against the revision of the Elections Act requiring married women to register under the name of the husband "regardless of the fact that she may be engaged in business or professional career outside the home."

A motion "that there should be no public showing" of the film "Life Returns," showing experiments carried out recently on resuscitation of "dead" dogs, was passed by the council after Mrs. Llewellyn Thomas brought in a report as convener of the cinema committee.

ISLAND FLOWERS

On Mrs. Porter's suggestion, the council decided to call the attention of the C.P.R. and the C.N.R. to the beautiful "Island flowers" costume designs created by young Victoria art students. This matter was brought to the attention of the meeting after Mrs. E. C. Hart's motion that the erythronium, or wild lily, should be recommended as British Columbia's emblematic flower.

Mrs. J. W. H. Holmes reported having taken the council's greetings to the recent Women's Institutes conference, and asked that the council send a letter of thanks to the institutes for the invitation extended to attend the reception at Government House.

Mrs. C. C. Spofford reported having attended the recent Social Workers' conference, dinner at which she was given an opportunity to remind the delegates that the Victoria Local Council of Women was responsible for the inauguration of the Victoria Friendly Help Association.

Dr. Jardine, reporting for the citizenship committee, reminded members that municipal elections would take place on December 13, and asked for solid backing of Mrs. MacLaurin by council delegates and the affiliated organizations which they represented.

The annual meeting, it was announced by the president, will take place on Wednesday and Thursday, January 16 and 17.

On motion of Mrs. J. D. Gordon, a resolution from the Soroptimist Club favoring any method that would raise the occupation of house help to the standing of other occupations, and to this end favoring the institution of housewifery courses, will be sent on to the annual meeting for discussion.

Canadian Pacific Opposing Application of Vancouver Harbor Board to Make Connection With Terminal Dock & Warehouse Company

VANCOUVER, Nov. 5 (CP).—Application of the Vancouver Harbor Board to the Board of Railway Commissioners for authority to build an extension of its terminal railway, from Salisbury Drive to Kaslo Street, and to connect this extension with the tracks of the Terminal Dock & Warehouse Company, occupied the session today.

J. E. McMullen, K.C., solicitor for the Canadian Pacific Railway, which is opposing the application, contended that the legislation under which the harbor board was created did not give it authority to build a railway which was not necessary. He declared the railway board had authority to refuse the application on these grounds.

Chairman F. H. Garceau said there is nothing in the act to show that the board is the judge of whether the railway is required or not.

"It seems to me that until you are satisfied it is necessary, you should not proceed with the application," Mr. McMullen said.

POWER EXISTS
W. E. Burns, K.C., appearing for the harbor board, read the section of the act which gives the board authority to build a railway to serve the purposes of the harbor. He argued that the act gives full power to build the terminal railway extension as requested.

G. L. White, harbor board controller, stated the reason for the application is the completion of a comprehensive terminal railway, proposed development of the property to be served, and to handle the substantial business given the board by the Canadian National Railway. He declared the number of cars to be handled would give a substantial return on the investment. The principal difficulty encountered in using the C.P.R. facilities was the cost, he added.

Questioned by Mr. McMullen, Mr.

White said the harbor board had already expended about $270,000 on the grading of the proposed extension and in acquiring property rights, and that no complaints have been received against the handling of cars by the C.P.R.

In 1930, he stated, the C.P.R. had threatened to enact a new agreement, much more expensive than the one it was now operating under. He said the average loss of the terminal railway over a term of years was about $6,000 a year.

Mr. McMullen, reading from the report on the harbor by Sir Alexander Gibb, quoted that expert as recommending the board to abandon the terminal railway. He called a number of witnesses to show that the industries on the waterfront, not now served by the terminal railway, were being given good switching connections by the C.P.R.

HUGE DREDGE
FOR YANGTZE

Whangpoo Conservancy Board Solves Problem of Mud Removal

Destined for the Yangtze Bar, one of the largest dredges in the world was launched at Danzig, a short time ago, in the presence of the Chinese Charge d'Affaires at Berlin and other officials. The craft is expected to be completed early next year, at a total cost of approximately $2,350,000.

The building of the dredger was ordered by the Whangpoo Conservancy Board as a solution of the problem of removing 40,000,000 tons of mud from the Yangtze River Bar and lowering the crest by about nine feet over a width adequate for the passage of the largest ships.

The special type, which combines dragging and suction operations, was evolved after years of study by the board, the deepening of the channel having been advocated for the last sixty years. It will be able to remove and discharge 30,000 tons of mud every ten hours.

In 1876 the then engineer-in-chief of the Conservancy Board, Mr. Derijke, called attention to the importance of improving the channel, but no further impetus was given the scheme until 1915, when new studies were made by the board and the customs.

FEATURES OF DREDGE

The drag-suction type of dredger is the result of an invention made about 1903 by an engineer named Fruelhuising. Its peculiar feature is that it is not anchored, but travels under its own power, at a speed of about two knots, and scrapes its suction pipe along the bed of the river, thereby forcing the mud into the pipe. A powerful pump draws mud, mixed with water, up the pipe, and delivers it into special containers, from which it may be afterwards discharged through doors in the bottom, or by pumping.

The dredger, which is being completed, is one of the largest that has ever been built, and will appear to external view just like a cargo ship. She is 360 feet long, sixty feet wide and when loaded with 4,000 tons of mud will draw eighteen feet. The guaranteed output of the dredger, including the discharge of mud two miles away from the dredging place, is 25,000 cubic yards per day, or more than 30,000 tons in ten hours.

The general design and specifications were prepared by Dr. Herbert Chabley, engineer-in-chief of the Whangpoo Conservancy Board, assisted by the dredging department of the board. The details of the design were made by Mr. Kolkman, chief technician of Messrs. Schichau.

PROTESTING
SEINE NETS

Fishermen Claim Gill-Net Salmon Industry in Danger if Seiners Continue

NEW WESTMINSTER, Nov. 5 (CP).—The British Columbia Fishermen's Protective Association has asked Prime Minister R. B. Bennett to instruct W. A. Found, deputy Minister of Fisheries, to meet Fraser River fishermen here between November 15 and 20, to hear their protest against the use of seines in the Gulf of Georgia off the mouth of the Fraser River.

Mr. Found will arrive in Vancouver on Wednesday morning, his visit being primarily for the purpose of attending the annual meeting of the International Fishing Commission in Seattle, November 12 to 15.

In addition to the protest against seines, the fishermen also object to the importation of sockeye salmon from the United States.

Association officials claim that many of the 2,000 fishermen on the Fraser River will be forced to obtain Government relief if seining is permitted to continue. They contend that the gill-net fishing industry on the Fraser River, estimated to be worth $1,000,000 annually, is jeopardized by the operation of seines.

The fishermen will meet representatives of Fraser River municipalities on November 14 to discuss the situation.

Vancouver Shipping

VANCOUVER, Nov. 5 (CP).—Vancouver harbor enjoyed a busy weekend, with eight ships arriving from deep-sea routes.

The vessels were Ss. Cuba Maru, for Japan; Ms. Benjamin Franklin, for Europe; Ms. Appledore, for London; Ss. Wareick, with oil from California; Ss. Chacacas, to load for the west coast of South America; Ss. Point Ancha, to land South American products and load for Gulf ports and South America; Ms. Oakworth, to load for England, and Ms. Norge, to load for Australia.

Three vessels shifted from Vancouver to the Fraser River, Ms. Lochkatrine, Ss. Monleigh and Ss. Cuba Maru.

Dingwall, Cotts & Company reported Ms. Silverfir due here early next week, from Japan, as an extra vessel on the round-the-world route via South Africa.

NEW THEMES IN DOMINION FILM

"No Greater Glory" Introduces New Plot for Pictures—Buda-pest Local

Old themes take a holiday, totally absenting themselves from the Columbia production, "No Greater Glory," showing today at the Dominion Theatre. The producer has employed a story of such strength and beauty that it would have been nothing less than profitable to have dragged in the time-worn triangle.

The screen story is set in Budapest, Hungary, and concerns the struggles of rival organizations of youths to possess a city recreation lot. One group, lacking a ball park and a drill field, resolves to take the property by force. The ensuing conflicts and the far-reaching results supply a range of highly dramatic incidents which make the real estate plot a nation and transforms youthful ambitions and sacrifices into patriotism.

A climax there is, and a rousing one—and though it isn't to be guessed beforehand, it is logical and stirring, and is told without flinching. That much of the action resembles the dog-eat-dog attitude of big business, or the obvious, strong-arm methods used by diplomats to gain their ends, is all in favor of the realism of "No Greater Glory."

CAPITOL Norma Shearer's face THEATRE is most difficult to sculp, according to Una O'Connor, because it is so perfect. Miss O'Connor, playing "Wilson," Miss Shearer's maid in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," current Capitol film, made this statement while the film was in production. While not working in the scene, she sat on the sidelines, studying the star's features and reproducing them in clay.

PLAYHOUSE Sally Eilers has returned to the Fox Theatre. Film studio to play in her first 1934 picture, "Three on a Honeymoon," now at the Playhouse Theatre, in which Henrietta Crossman and Zasu Pitts share feature honors. Miss Eilers' last Fox film was "Walls of Gold," following which she was "borrowed" by her producer-husband, Harry Joe Brown, for a picture at Paramount.

COLUMBIA Two of Hollywood's most famous song and lyrics combinations collaborated on the music for Paramount's melody-comedy-romance, "Shoot the Works," now at the Columbia Theatre, and featuring Jack Oakie, Ben Bernie, Dorothy Dell and Arline Judge. They are Ralph Ralinger and Leo Robin, and Mack Gordon and Harry Revel.

LIVELY OPERA WILL BE OFFERED SHORTLY

Since it was first produced in Daly's Theatre, in London, more than a quarter of a century ago, the light opera, "A Country Girl," has been one of the most popular and delightful shows of its kind. It has been chosen by the Victoria Operatic Society for the first presentation this season, and will be presented at the Lyric Theatre on November 15, 16 and 17.

It was this opera that made the name of Lionel Monckton famous throughout the musical world. The airs that he wrote for "A Country Girl" are light and catching, and the music-loving population of twenty-five years ago whistled and hummed those airs for days and days.

CRITIC ACCLAIMS THE "BROADWAY VANITIES"

With a splendid cast of ensemble dancers, singers, comedians and skaters, as well as a first-class dance band, "The Broadway Vanities" will open at the Empire Theatre on Friday and will show also on Saturday and Monday.

Of this show, The Vancouver Province says: "One of the most entertaining road shows to appear in Vancouver for some time. It is a programme that can be recommended to all, for in it is contained humor that will appeal to both old and young, as well as other features that are equally attractive."

"It is quite a lengthy show, taking a full hour, and contains seven featured acts."

VIOLINIST SUCCEEDS IN HER CHOSEN CAREER

Like Albert Spalding, Kayla Mittel is a success in spite of her family's wealth and the consequent temptations to indulge in a life of luxurious ease.

This phenomenal young artist of the bow, who plays here on November 14, at the Empress Hotel, also had to overcome parental objections before she could embark upon the career that has brought her into world prominence, and causes her name to be mentioned among those of the famous members of the violin clan.

Acclaimed as the successor of David Powell and Kathleen Parlow (also a Canadian), Kayla Mittel is credited with the musicianship and sympathy of Powell and the brilliant virtuosity of Parlow.

WILL PRESENT FILM OF AFRICAN ANIMALS

Authentic and interesting films of wild animal life in Africa will be shown at the Crystal Garden on Thursday. This entertainment has been organized as a benefit for the Victorian Order of Nurses and is being presented by Frank Pullen.

Mr. Pullen, together with his wife, this year journeyed through Kenya Colony and Tanganyika Territory, East Africa, and secured remarkable moving pictures of the wild life which, accompanied by a running fire of commentary from Mr. Pullen, make the scenes live before the spectator. The films were taken simply as a personal record by Mr. Pullen and hold no flavor of commercialism.

CITY TAX SALE HAS COMMENCED

First Session Held Yesterday When Five Lots Were Disposed of From List

The annual tax sale for Victoria was commenced in the council chamber of the City Hall, yesterday morning, with about 600 lots on the list for disposal provided they are not redeemed before they are reached on the list. Yesterday only five lots were sold, and brought $1,617.51. There were, however, twenty lots redeemed by owners before the sale opened.

Of the lots that were sold, private buyers who were interested in the ownership, in one form or another, of the lots offered, made the purchases.

The sale will resume at 10 o'clock this morning. Adjournments will follow from day to day until the list is disposed of.

Last year there were approximately 725 lots on the block. Thirty were sold to private interests and 467 were bought in by the city, the remainder being redeemed before they went under the hammer.

"Getting up early is a matter of will-power." The triumph of mind over matter.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

LONDON, Nov. 5 (CP).—The engagement of Hon. Sheila Berge, second daughter of Lord and Lady Camrose, to the Earl of Birkenhead, was announced tonight. The bridegroom, Frederick Winston Smith, is the eldest son of the late Lord Birkenhead, and succeeded to the title four years ago at the age of twenty-three.

POLL RESULTS ON TWO CHAINS

N.B.C. and Columbia to Broadcast Flashes on U.S. Balloting

Expert political commentators of both N.B.C. and C.B.S. will be on hand to give late flashes on election returns and national issues, as United States voters go to the polls today. At frequent intervals, flashes will be placed on the air.

For N.B.C., John B. Kennedy will broadcast and interpret the various results as they are received in New York. N.B.C. microphones will be installed in party headquarters in New York and Washington, for comments by national leaders on the trend of voting. Mr. Kennedy will be on the air with the first results at 4:45 o'clock.

HOLD NETWORKS OPEN

Because of the importance of the Sinclair-Merriam contest in California, both Eastern networks of N.B.C. will remain on the air until 2 a.m. E.S.T. Dance orchestras in New York will supply music during the period the election returns are being compiled. The many Victorians interested can pick up N.B.C. returns on both KOMO and KJR.

H. V. Kallenborn, and Raymond Clapper, widely-known Washington correspondent and now on the editorial staff of The Washington Post, will broadcast for Columbia. The principal C.B.S. broadcast will be heard between 7:30 and 8 o'clock. Results of the California contest will be heard during the evening, announcements being made on regular scheduled programmes. KOL, KVI, KSL and KPBC are the stations carrying a complete Columbia resume.

Tomorrow at 3:30 o'clock, Chester H. Rowell, managing editor of The San Francisco Chronicle, will analyze the result of the California gubernatorial contest for N.B.C.

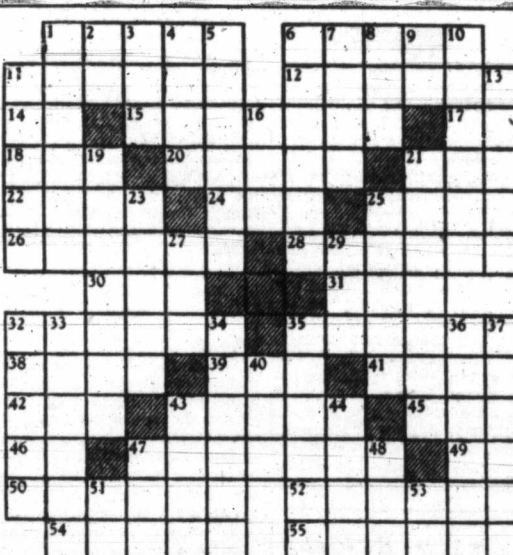

Mr. Jones was airing his views at the dinner table about the inconsistency of women.

"These modern girls who profess they are never going to marry," he said, "everybody knows they will belie their own words at the first opportunity."

"Why, Martha," he said, "I once heard you say that you'd never marry the best man alive."

"Well, I didn't," said Mrs. Jones.

Prairie Gridders Defeat University Of B.C. for Trophy

University of Alberta Take Back Hardy Cup After Four Years by 11-1 Victory Over Point Grey Institution—Coast Team Opens Strong, But Fails to Hold Visitors in Check

By EVERETT GRAEME
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 5 (CP).—University of Alberta's Golden Bears mauled University of British Columbia's Thunder-Birds into 11-1 defeat, today, to win back for the prairies the Hardy Cup, Western inter-collegiate football trophy held by the Coast for the past four years.

The gold and green-clad crew, which youthful Coach Alan Wilson has rounded into the greatest grid machine the Alberta varsity has had in nine years, held the Coast squad to a lone point, a rouge, in the first quarter, then opened up their bag of tricks to count two converted touchdowns in the second quarter and a rouge in the third.

A last-minute rally which netted the British Columbia students forty yards and carried them to Alberta's ten-yard line, was halted by the final whistle.

OPENS STRONG
The Coast team started off strong. Ed Kendall, star backfielder, smashed through Alberta for twenty-five yards in the opening minutes, then tossed a long pass to Tony McIntyre to put the ball on the prairie twenty-five-yard line.

Kendall's long kick was taken by Guy Morton, who failed to get back over his goal line and was roused for British Columbia's lone point.

J. Cameron paved the way for Alberta's first touchdown in the second quarter when he blocked a kick and recovered it on British Columbia's eleven-yard line.

An outside kick gave the Albertans yards, and after two line plays failed to gain ground, Hal Richards Alberta quarterback, smashed through centre for the touchdown.

SECOND TOUCHDOWN
Alberta's second touchdown came five minutes from half-time. Morton lifted a forty-five-yard punt to Bill Willoughby, who fumbled, and C. Malcolm raced up to scoop the ball and sprint forty yards to the Coast goal line. Scott again missed the convert.

The Coast students started a drive in the third quarter that fell short of scoring when Kendall fumbled the ball on Alberta's five-yard line, and it was recovered by the prairie team.

Late in the quarter Morton kicked to Rush, who was caught behind the British Columbia goal line and roused by Bill Scott, to end the scoring.

Line-ups follow:

Park Inside Orr

TITLE FIGHT ATTRACTING

Great Interest Evincing Over Wallace-Townsend Clash Tomorrow

VANCOUVER, B.C., Nov. 5.—The first fifteen-round fistic battle in years to be staged here is scheduled Wednesday night, when Gordon Wallace and Billy Townsend clash for the Canadian welterweight title.

Wallace has run up a string of wins during the past year, with the result that he is being touted as championship timber and is being conceded an even chance in the coming battle.

Four sensational knockouts over Eddie Kille, of Winnipeg; Ray Huffman, Jack McAvoy and Billy Overby and a decision over Emil "Young" Lust are Wallace's most recent performances.

Townsend, since his last appearance here, has battled such fistic lights as Billy Petrolle, Tony Canzoneri, Benny Leonard, Battling Battalino and Eddie Ran, and just recently returned from a successful invasion of Australia.

No match staged here in recent years has created the interest being shown in the coming fifteen-round fistic battle, and a capacity house is expected.

Mixing of Amateurs And Pros Is Barred By Provincial Body

British Columbia Branch of Amateur Athletic Union of Canada Will Not Tolerate Athletes Competing in Unorganized Sports

VANCOUVER, Nov. 5 (CP).—The British Columbia Branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada today served notice that it will not tolerate registered amateur athletes competing in unorganized sports.

Gordon A. Woolridge, of Victoria, chairman of the registration committee of the British Columbia branch of the A.A.U. of C., made the announcement in a statement issued today.

"The statement, drawn up after a week-end meeting by the committee, said: 'Arising out of this committee meeting the status of certain individuals is being questioned. In the first instance, players playing with and against professional athletes have been brought to our attention and a full investigation is being made. Pending the outcome of this investigation, the application of these athletes is being withheld. In the meantime, the chairman of this committee is authorizing temporary permits.'

"Other circumstances have been brought to our attention whereby athletes competing in unorganized sports have automatically disqualified themselves from participating in any organized amateur sport by reason of the following rule of the A.A.U. of C.:

TO BE DISQUALIFIED
"Clause 6 of the general rules of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, under the heading of suspension of disqualification of individuals, says that any person competing or exhibiting at open sports or any athletic entertainment that is not given under the sanction of an allied or branch member of the union, shall thereby disqualify himself from competing at any sports given under sanction of the union."

"The registration committee of the branch in whose territory the offence was committed shall have the power to reinstate anyone disqualified."

"Due to the fact that we consider that this breach of our law has been committed through lack of knowledge on the part of the athlete, this committee has resolved to waive the necessity of withholding their cards."

"Athletes are hereby warned that any future participation in unorganized sport is liable to have their cards withheld in organized sport. It is the opinion of this committee that the athletes are not wholly responsible for finding themselves in this predicament as it is mostly due to the fact of lack of information from their executives."

Remember When
(Twenty-Five Years Ago)
It was a hollow victory which the Rugby team of the High School won from the University School, yesterday afternoon, at the Royal Athletic Park, in the second inter-collegiate series. By a score of 14 to 11, the high school fifteen took the other aggregation into camp. The game was hardly as one-sided as the score would indicate, but throughout, the superiority of the city educational institution was marked. The first try was scored by Boggs, and was converted into a goal by Touhy, while shortly afterwards Gray scored another try, while Brown converted. At half-time the score stood 11-0.

In the second half Day made a score, which, however, was not converted. The university, while coming near scoring a number of times, were prevented by the close work of the high school, and the game ended with their failing to make a tally.

Fight Promoter Runs Away With Entire Proceeds

MEXICO, D.F., Nov. 5 (AP).—Baby Arizmendi, New York State featherweight champion; Henry Armstrong, California Negro boxer; the police, and representatives of the Treasury Department tonight were trying to locate Henry Hofffield, promoter of yesterday's fight, who had disappeared with nearly all of the gate receipts.

Arizmendi outpointed Armstrong in the ten-round fight. Police expressed the belief Hofffield had gone to the United States by airplane with approximately 70,000 to 80,000 pesos ($21,000 to $25,000), of which 50 per cent was due the fighters.

FIVE GREAT HORSES MAY SEEK PURSE

Equipoise, Twenty Grand, Cavalcade, Discovery and Head Play May Race

NEW YORK, Nov. 5 (AP).—Equipoise, Twenty Grand, Cavalcade, Discovery, Head Play—just imagine a horserace with these five competing. It is likely to materialize, too. All five are in training for the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap in sunny California, February 23.

This race, the richest ever offered on the United States turf in almost three years, is rapidly shaping up as an event to decide the championship of champions.

Equipoise, still campaigning as a six-year-old in an attempt to surpass Sun Beau's world money-winning record of $376,744, was the two-year-old money-winning champion of 1930, holds the world record for a mile, 1:34 2-5, and despite frequent lameness, has amassed stake winnings of $334,450.

Twenty Grand, the turf's supreme idol after he broke the Kentucky Derby record in 1931 in 2:01 4-5, the fastest time for a mile and a quarter in ten years, has been in retirement for two years, but has returned to training. He holds the world's two-year-old record for a mile, 1:36.

HAS WON PLENTY
Cavalcade, undisputed money-winning champion of the current season, defeated only once this year by a nose by his stablemate, High Quest, in the Freshness, has won $111,235 this season. He is expected to be beaten at a mile and a quarter.

Discovery, winner of distance races only when Cavalcade is not competing, holds the world record for a mile and three-sixteenths, 1:55.

Head Play, winner of the 1933 Preakness, also is in training for a comeback. Head Play is a formidable racer when at his best, and many experts still believe he was the best horse in the 1933 Derby, but was the victim of a faulty ride.

LEAFS IN TIE
TORONTO, Nov. 5 (CP).—Toronto Leafs and Syracuse Stars scrambled their forces in a charity game here tonight, and 14,247 persons saw Dick Irvin's "whites" and Eddie Powers' "blues" play sixty minutes to a 4-4 tie.

Remember When
(Twenty-Five Years Ago)
It was a hollow victory which the Rugby team of the High School won from the University School, yesterday afternoon, at the Royal Athletic Park, in the second inter-collegiate series. By a score of 14 to 11, the high school fifteen took the other aggregation into camp. The game was hardly as one-sided as the score would indicate, but throughout, the superiority of the city educational institution was marked. The first try was scored by Boggs, and was converted into a goal by Touhy, while shortly afterwards Gray scored another try, while Brown converted. At half-time the score stood 11-0.

In the second half Day made a score, which, however, was not converted. The university, while coming near scoring a number of times, were prevented by the close work of the high school, and the game ended with their failing to make a tally.

ANNUAL ARMY GAME SET SATURDAY AT MACDONALD PARK

Art Chapman, Larry Henderson and Jack Horne Will Bolster 16th for Big Fixture Against 5th Regiment—Teams Working Out Hard—Gunners Are Defending Prized Silverware

On to victory! That's the battle cry of the fighting Canadian Scottish band of Rugby players, as they marshal all of their strength for Saturday's All-Army oval ball classic with the brilliant Fifth Regiment at Macdonald Park, at 3 o'clock, in the fourth annual skirmish for possession of the prized Fordham Johnson Cup, now safely tucked away in the Gunners' silver cabinet, by reason of their victory last year.

Today, on the eve of the clash for supremacy in local militia circles, the boys of the Canadian Scottish are wearing a smile, where before they were a frown, because their chances of regaining the trophy look brighter than they have for many a long day. With the return to their camp of Larry Henderson and Jack Horne, stellar backfield performers, for Saturday's fixture, and the assurance that Art Chapman and "Chuck" Copeland, wing three, will be in the line-up, the "kitties" with this improved backfield, feel they will be able to repulse the well-planned attacks of the Gunners. In addition, Manager Cyril Wightman, of the Scottish, has Bill Holland and Herb Rowlands, backfield players, to call upon.

The half-back positions will be well looked after with Ken Billingsley as scrum half and Bobby Tye, captain, as stand-off half.

TWELVE CANDIDATES
Twelve candidates are trying for the scrum positions, and when the final workout has been held it will be a well-balanced pack that will go into the fray against the Fifth Regiment rugger. The "kitties" have such first-class forwards as Bill Campbell, John Rockingham, Bruce McGregor, Ian Acland, Jack Banks, Dick George, Russ Stewart, George Knight, Sam Gardiner, Bill Thompson and Tom Dowell all going through their paces in preparation for the battle.

Joe Pryke Takes Over Duties at Colwood Course
TO take over the duties made vacant by the death of Alex Marling a few weeks ago, Joe Pryke, Alberta open golf champion, and formerly associated with the Edmonton Golf Club, arrived in the city Sunday and took over the professional position at the Royal Colwood Club. Yesterday he toured the course to familiarize himself with the layout. Pryke is highly rated in Canadian pro circles and, therefore, Victoria is fortunate in having acquired such a fine shotmaker. He was given a great boost, recently, by Gene Sarzen, noted American professional, who stated that the Prairie golfer was the finest he had met on his tour of the continent.

FANS TO SEE
BOXERS TRAIN
Fielding and Davies Will Work-Out Thursday Evening at Tillicum Gym
With Saturday, the day of the Fielding-Davis Canadian welterweight championship elimination bout rapidly drawing near, Promoter Joe Bayley announced yesterday that he had completed arrangements for the appearance at the Tillicum gymnasium, Thursday evening, of the two principals in a workout session, commencing at 8 o'clock.

Abbie Davies will face the fans first and step a few rounds with his brother, Jumbo Davies, and one of the crack boxers from the Royal Canadian Navy, Tommy Fielding will follow and will be seen in action against Frankie Neel and Nick Lister. The fans are invited to watch the boxers in action.

NANAIMO WINS OVER MARPOLE
Up-Island English Rugger Takes 13-10 Verdict From Mainlanders on Heavy Field
NANAIMO, Nov. 5 (CP).—In one of the hardest-fought games of the season, played in poor weather conditions, Nanaimo defeated Marpoles Rugby team, 13-10, here Sunday. It was Nanaimo's first win of the season. Nanaimo took an early lead when Kilner scored after two minutes' play. Dawkin converted. Marpole drew even when Dick Jones went over after a beautiful run, which he afterwards improved with a nice goal. Wink McDougall and Dawkin thereafter completed a pretty run for the latter to score. The effort at conversion failed. Nanaimo led 8-5 at the half.

Ormond scored after Hyne's run upon resumption, and Dawkin converted. Despite the reverse, Marpole played well to score through Fraser with four minutes to go. Jones converted. The game was rough throughout, and Referee Jack Hall was forced to stop play to warn players. McLeod sustained a broken rib and Boston a broken nose. Field's nose was also hurt, but not broken.

Appointments Are Made by Secretary Of Eastern Union

J. Fyfe-Smith, of Vancouver, Selected as British Columbia's Representative on Board — Move Will Link Dominion With Other Nations — Will Affiliates

TORONTO, Nov. 5 (CP).—Four appointments have been made to the Canadian cricket's "board of control," and there is a possibility the personnel may be enlarged to include Maritime representation and another representative from the Mid-West. The national unit was organized following inter-provincial communications and conferences between cricket heads.

On the board at present are Hon. R. C. Matthews, of Ottawa, Minister of National Revenue, who is the provisional chairman; J. Fyfe-Smith, of Vancouver; W. C. Mills, of Regina, and P. L. Pratley, of Montreal.

The Cabinet Minister donated the silver trophy, emblematic of county championship in Ontario. Mr. Fyfe-Smith is president of the British Columbia Mainland Cricket League and is a leading figure in British Columbia Rugby circles. Mr. Mills is president of the Saskatchewan Cricket Association, and Mr. Pratley has been president of the Montreal and District Amateur Cricket League for the last four years and has been active on the Westward Cricket Club team.

TO AFFILIATE
In announcing the appointments to the Dominion Board of Control, R. W. Sharp, secretary of the Ontario Cricket Association, said, "In due course applications will be made by the Dominion board to become affiliated with the Imperial conference of the Marylebone Cricket Club."

"When that objective is attained, Canada will be linked up officially with England, Australia, South Africa, New Zealand, India and the West Indies," the secretary said. "Prospective tours by teams to and from the Dominion will be considered and arranged by the newly-formed board."

DEANS WANT $40,000 FOR NEXT SEASON

Dizzy Applies for $25,000 and Daffy Asks for $15,000

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 5 (AP).—Dizzy and Paul Dean, who ask a joint salary of $40,000 for their pitching next season, dropped in on President Sam Breadon of the St. Louis Cardinals for a chat today.

The meeting was announced as solely a social get-together, but it is known that Breadon would like to sign the Deans at once.

"The brothers, who pitched the Cardinals to their four victories over Detroit Tigers in the world series, have been on a barnstorming and vaudeville tour."

"We made about $12,000 apiece since the world series," Dizzy said. "So there aren't going to be any big, bad wolves running around our house at Deansville this winter."

"But that isn't going to make me unreasonable. Take some and leave some," Dizzy said. "I want to find out very reasonable and as I might say to him in a letter, hoping he is the same, I am yours truly, Dizzy."

BIG INCREASES
When they get around to contracts, Dizzy has announced he will ask for a one-year agreement calling for a $25,000 salary, and Paul will tell him he thinks he should be paid $15,000.

Dizzy's 1934 contract called for a salary of $7,500 and he received a $1,000 bonus when he signed the document. Paul, a first-year man, was signed for $3,000.

Virginia Vane Says:

DISCOVERY OF LOVE LETTER SHOULD NOT DISRUPT HAPPY MARRIAGE

Dear Virginia Vane: I have been married ten years, and am the mother of three attractive children. My marriage has been a peculiarly happy one. It grew out of a boy and girl high school affair, and there has never been anyone else for either of us during the whole time of our married life, until two months ago, I discovered a letter in the pocket of a coat I was pressing for him. It was from a lady friend, and was full of endearing terms.

I was crushed, and confronted him with it immediately. He felt very sorry about the affair, saying that the woman had pursued him, and the new experience had been the only thing that had attracted him. He promised that if I forgave him he would never see her again.

His business makes it necessary for him to be away several nights a week, and since I discovered his unfaithfulness, I cannot bring myself to trust him as I once did. It really is killing me. I can't sleep, nor can I do my work the way I should, and am terribly jealous every time he stays out at night. Please tell me how I can bring myself to trust him again, and destroy this horrible jealousy that is surely wrecking my life. I cannot possibly get a separation, as I love him too much.—Marla.

Jealousy is a very ugly business, and I am sure that a mother of three well children must have the dignity and bigness of spirit that would soon drive it out, that is if she will exert the effort necessary. Generally, the most desperately jealous people are the ones that are struggling hard to have something they don't really deserve. They have allowed themselves to drift, not bothering to correct apparent weaknesses in their personality, and then when someone comes along whom they think they care for, they know they are licked before they start, and any sort of competition makes them jealous. Now you have everything to give you the confidence necessary to overcome this jealous attitude.

Your three children must be a source of great satisfaction to you, and surely with them in the house there can be no lack of love. You have lived happily with this man for ten years, and that in itself should make you feel proud and assured. It takes a great lot of intelligence for two people to get along for ten years, and be in love all of that time. You have then the love of your children, and ten years of domestic happiness with which to assure yourself of your worthiness. The petty smallness of jealousy can have no part in a personality that has succeeded in these two major departments. Remember, then, you are too big to be jealous. Only the weak, hysterical woman that has no background, no dignity, and no courage can be jealous. You may be sad that you find your ideal has feet of clay, but you cannot be jealous.

When you have convinced yourself of the utility and weakness of jealousy it will be an easy thing to again trust your husband. Go to him and let him know that you are tortured by the uncertainty caused by the discovery of this other woman, and suggest that rather than suffer in this way you are prepared to know the worst. If he is still suffering from this "new experience," tell him that it is much better for him to let you know it now than have some kind friend inform you of it, or for another unguarded letter to tell you the worst.

I feel sure that this is just a passing fancy with your husband. Be confident that any woman capable of rushing after a married man cannot be very attractive really to a man who for ten years has adopted as his principle great personal integrity, loyalty, affection, etc. He will wake up, if he hasn't done so already, but in the difficult time before he does, you must not give way to desperation. His affair has nothing whatever to do with his love for you, and you must not get yourself into an unlovely state of hysteria, so that when he again turns to you he will find you any more unattractive than when he left you.

I know that if you approach him courageously, appealing to his sense of fairness that has kept you together for ten years, he will be completely honest with you, and the understanding that will result from such a sane, calm talk will allay your distrust and at the same time go a long way to convincing him of your courage, intelligence and love, so that his stupidity in thinking of anyone else will be glaringly apparent.

FRIENDSHIP DEMANDS UNSELFISHNESS

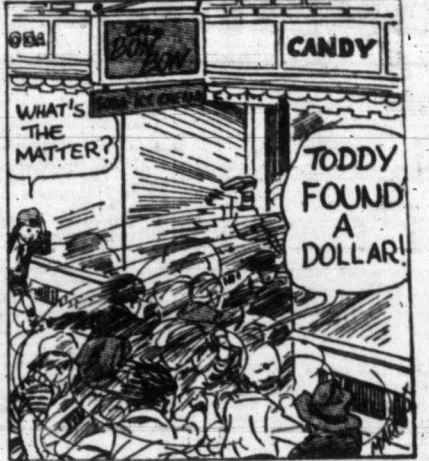

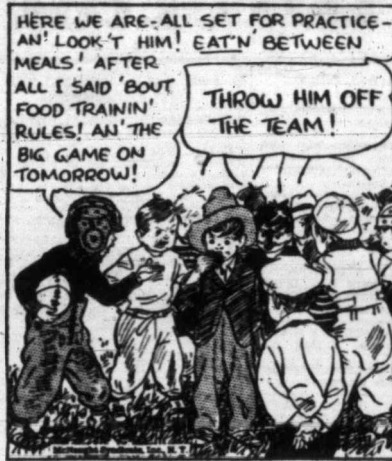

Proposed: Perhaps you took the girl too much for granted. It is generally the man's job to make the effort, and it is the girl's place to sit back and wait for the man to come to her. If you had gotten to the point in your affair where you thought she ought to do most of the running, then I do believe you were taking her too much for granted. From your letter it would appear that you had made up your mind that if she wanted to see you she'd have to exert herself a little more to make that possible. You seemed to think you were Prince Regent in the business, and that your favors should be appreciated much more than they were. If you were really in love with this girl, you wouldn't be thinking quite so much about your dignity, but more about how you could make her happy. Nothing can be lost from writing her a little note, telling her that you enjoy her friendship too much to let anything break it up and are prepared to meet her half way. Let her see that you really do care for her, that you are sorry for your stubbornness, and that the friendship, if she wishes to continue it, will be a more unselfish one on your part. Unless I have badly misjudged her, I know she will quickly renew the friendship on this basis.

National Defence Department Takes Over Old Drydock

The old drydock at Esquimalt is to be utilized from now on as a wet dock, J. P. Forde, Dominion Government district engineer, with headquarters at Vancouver, announced here yesterday.

The drydock has been transferred from the Dominion Department of Public Works to the Department of National Defence, the transfer taking place on November 1.

It will be used for the berthing of the naval vessels stationed in Esquimalt Harbor, together with the several patrol boats of the R.C.M.P.

Taking over the dock by the Department of National Defence will give increased docking space for the vessels, in the Government service, based at Esquimalt, and should tend to relieve any congestion at the naval jetty, which in the past has been used for outfitting and repairing the various vessels as needed.

Pocket-knife factories in England are rushed with orders.

SILVER SLIPPERS

CHAPTER XXVI

Drew went on to explain eagerly that what he hoped was that Adelaide would listen to reason as time went on. "She'll want you to come, perhaps, before we sail. And if she doesn't, I'll know you're mine, for time and for eternity."

"But why not tell her?"

"Because while she's in this mood, she'll never forgive us. We might spill the beans."

Joan had to have him say it like that. It destroyed the illusion. Yet as he wove for her the fabric of his dreams, she wavered.

"My wife! Joan, do you know how lovely you are? I thought I had remembered, but when I saw you tonight..."

She felt as if a silken net were being drawn about her. Her conscience, her common sense were against the thing he proposed, but at last she promised!

"You will never regret it," Drew told her, triumphantly.

They went upstairs together, and as she went into her room, Drew's whisper rang in her ears like a chime of bells. "Our wedding day... tomorrow."

She lighted her candles, and moved about the room, finding the things she would need in the morning. Her mind was in a whirl! It seemed as if she were two people; that one side of her consented to what Drew had proposed, while the other protested, "I will not, I will not."

She decided that the grey dress which Drew had praised should be her wedding gown. And there would be the ivory beads. And the little violet hat.

In the room next to Joan's, Penelope lay wide awake. She had not gone to bed until Joan came up. She had hoped the child might look in upon her and say "Good-night," but the light footsteps had passed her door. She had heard Joan moving about, but now there was no sound.

She had a sense of foreboding. If Joan had been her daughter, she would have gone to her. But Joan was not her daughter...

At last she could stand it no longer. She put on a dressing gown and went along the hall. When she reached Joan's room, she found the door open, and Joan, like a ghost, in her white negligee, standing in the middle of the floor.

"How strange you should come, Penelope," she said in a breathless voice, "I was coming... to you..."

Penelope went in and closed the door. She sat down in a chintz-covered chair. Joan sat on the bed. She lighted a candle and its pale flame showed the two women...

with her silky, shining hair, was like one of Raphael's angels. Penelope's hair was in kids, and her dressing gown was made of a red blanket. Her shadow on the wall showed little horns, but there was nothing diabolical about Penelope. She was sane and sensible, and tonight her heart was troubled...

If Joan were her daughter...

"And now, my dear, what is it?"

"I couldn't sleep..."

"Why not?"

"I had so much to think of."

"Worrying things?"

"Darling, I wish I had a stiff backbone..."

"Does that mean you are going to give into your aunt?"

"No. But I've found out that it wasn't Drew's fault. He came...

"To tell me..."

"So you've forgiven him."

"Oh, yes... you see... I love him..."

Again Penelope had that sense of something sinister. "My dear," she said, "I don't know why you should wish for a stiff backbone."

But let us say that she was in everything else, there are just three things which make for happiness—and they are faith and honesty and courage. If you bring these to your lover and he brings them to you, nothing can prevail against them. If you were my daughter, Joan, I would wish only this for you, that the man you marry should hold you to your best."

Joan sat very still, a little statue in the starlight, and at last she said with a sigh... "We are none of us perfect..."

"No."

They talked after that of other things and finally Penelope rose and stood by the bed. "I must say 'good night,' my dear."

"I shan't sleep," there was a quaver in Joan's voice.

"I will sit by you until you shut your eyes."

When at last Penelope went back to her room, it was a long time before she slept, and in the darkness she drew near to the infinite source of the strength which was within her. "Help her to choose the best, Lord," prayed the wise old woman.

Joan awoke at dawn and lay watching the light come into the room. It was a pleasant room, simply furnished with some of the nice old things that Penelope had inherited. Joan's bed was of the folding type, with a creel-worked cover and tester. There was a hooked rug, a Jacobean chest, a maple dressing table and a Queen Anne mirror above it.

On the dressing table were laid out Joan's toilet things—the brush and comb and handglass of carved ivory and silver, the pale flagon of perfume, the painted porcelain boxes. These were the only opulent articles in the room. They belonged to the old life.

Joan seemed to see Adelaide sitting beside the bed as she had sat that day in the hotel... "After all I've done for you... I've treated you like a princess... those pearls you have on are worth a fortune..."

The old voice had had venom in it, the old eyes had been baleful. Joan thought of Penelope's voice and eyes as last night she had sat beside the bed... faith, honesty and courage...

And set against these—a clandestine marriage!

The sun was up, and as the light poured in through the window, it seemed to Joan that a greater light entered her soul. Honesty and courage and faith? None of these would belong to her if she ran away with Drew.

She got up and put on the grey dress which was to have been her wedding dress. Then she went downstairs and followed the path which led to the bluff. She descended to the moor and came finally to the sea. She walked up the beach for miles... it was a dull morning and there were flocks of wild birds flitting back and forth across the sands. Their cries were mournful and were answered by the mewling of gulls overhead.

When at last she turned, Joan had made her decision. She knew now that when she faced Drew he could not sway her. A battle had been fought and she had won.

He was waiting for her at the edge of the bluff. "I saw you coming... where in the world have you been?"

"For a walk..."

"Why didn't you wait for me?"

"I had to think things out..."

"Got no pony."

The old Indian was riding along the road on his pony, while his squaw followed on foot heavily burdened with luggage.

"Say, Redskin, why isn't your wife riding?" asked a passing motorist.

"Ugh," answered the Indian, "she got no pony."

she lifted her face to his. "Drew, darling... I can't do it."

"Do what?"

"Marry you today."

"Why not?"

"Because it... isn't right."

"That's silly. Why shouldn't it be right?"

"Because I can't—hide things."

"Don't you love me?"

"You know I do."

"Well, then," he caught up her hands in his, "show me that you do."

She shook her head. He dropped her hands, his forehead frowning. "You know, of course, that you may be cutting yourself off from me—forever?"

"Not if you really love me."

He saw that she meant it. He stood looking down at her. "You're a strong little thing," he said, with a sort of grudging admiration. "But I'll tell you this. Some day you are going to marry me. On my own terms. And this is the sign and seal of it."

How Strange You Should Come, Penelope.

He lifted her in his arms and kissed her again. Then he set her down and strode away.

Joan stood where he had left her. And after a long time Penelope came out. "Breakfast is ready. Where is Mr. Hathorn?"

"He's gone, Penelope. He isn't coming back..."
